Permanent tax cut doomed

Washington (UPI) — Republicans virtually conceded Tuesday that their proposed permanent tax cut is doomed to defeat in the Senate. Key Democrats agreed.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said the tax cut "probably" will be beaten because it has failed to pick up enough Democratic support.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd and Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee agreed.

The vote on the GOP proposal, which would provide a $7.9 billion tax cut, is set for Wednesday. It was offered by Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and John Danforth, R-Mo., as an amendment to a House-passed tax bill.

"We will probably beat that amendment," Long said. "I don't think there will be many Democratic votes for it."

Meanwhile, the House, acting on a budget resolution, agreed to remove money from the budget for the $50 per person tax rebate now given up by the White House, but it defeated 302 to 109 an amendment by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., to remove funds from the budget for business tax incentives.

The votes clearly indicate the House will support a Senate vote to leave business tax cuts in a pending tax bill rather than delete them as President Carter asked.

Long sent a letter to his colleagues in which he said, "The charge that this bill before us is lop-sided towards business is completely without merit.

"Most of the tax cuts go to individuals and even the parts that go to business are conditioned on business activity which provides jobs to individuals."

Long said a new standard deduction, extension of earned income credit and extension of the general tax credit total $17.9 billion for individuals.

He said the investment credit, the jobs credit and the extension of small business tax cuts provides $5.3 billion for business.

Senate GOP leader Howard Baker said Republican support for the permanent tax cut would be "close to unanimous."

But Tower predicted that most Democrats, who hold a 62-38 majority in the Senate, will shy away from the GOP plan with the argument that Carter "will come down the pike with a plan of his own." Carter has threatened to veto any permanent tax cut now.

One Democrat, Sen Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H., endorsed the GOP proposal and said, "I think reducing business taxes without giving individual citizens an equal break would be unconscionably unfair."

McIntyre noted that when Carter abandoned the $50 per person rebate, he also asked Congress to kill the business jobs credit and the increase in the investment tax credit which the Senate refused to do

Amish shop land market in Nebraska

By Dean Terrill
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Pawnee City — The threesome stood out like cottonwoods in a corn field. All wore plain dark clothes, the men's topped by wide-brimmed black hats and the woman's by a brown bonnet.

They were from Ohio, and they came close to buying the Larry Schafer farm at auction Saturday afternoon.

At the last minute they decided against — though not because of price. "Seven or eight miles is a little far to town when you go by horse and buggy," explained a quiet and bespectacled Levi Troyer.

Between bids, the bearded men conferred privately in what they called a "Pennsylvania Dutch dialect." The woman, her sunglasses strikingly incongruous, smiled but said little.

Troyer, along with neighbor Atlee Miller and his wife, just might start an Amish settlement in southeast Nebraska. The past few months have seen four such delegations from Wayne County, Ohio — the world's largest Amish colony — checking out Pawnee County farm land.

There still were no names on the dotted line after a weekend of looking over several other land possibilities. But auctioneer-realtor Ab Christensen thinks there's at least an even chance the Ohioans will be back to buy.

"They would sign options on two places right now if we could just find a third one close by," said Christensen. "The problem is they won't move unless at least three families come out together. When and if that happens, there's a good chance that a number of families will follow."

Pawnee County's sparse population and minimal traffic are main attractions, as are relatively low land prices. Overcrowding has become critical in the Ohio locale, where some 5,000 of the Amish people are among those competing for available land.

In their own typical situation, the two young families are among 80 squeezed together on four sections near the town of Wooster. Each generation is finding the problem more acute as the clannish old order Amish try to remain together.

"It has become like a town in the country and there is just no land to buy for one's children," said Miller, whose family, with 10 children, is typical of Amish families. "It would be hard to leave, but what else can we do? It is something like the old pioneer days when families made new homes in the West."

Automobiles, tractors and virtually all modern conveniences are rejected because of the group's strict religious beliefs. Their general farming, all done with horses, is necessarily limited to relatively small tracts of no more than a quarter section.

Even electricity is shunned by the prospective newcomers. They heat with wood, and are enthusiastic over that commodity's abundance on Pawnee County's hillsides.

Troyer looks for room to grow.

"When I showed them through one nice house, the comment was that the carpeting and electricity would have to come out first thing," said Christensen. "Some of their ideas are different, but they're pleasant, likable people, honest and obviously hard-working."

The Ohioans were first attracted to Pawnee County this winter through a friend who had a personal contact in Beatrice. Fred Barr of Gallion, Ohio, lives about 60 miles from the Amish and has accompanied the four delegations here.

"They are a very self-sufficient people and much opposed to waste," he said. "Their way of life basically is just old-fashioned farming, with pigs and chickens and cows and, of course, horses."

While the groups have been well received, said Christensen, their interest has also prompted some apprehension. It is feared a substantial number of new farm families would inflate land prices. Also, businessmen can see that horse machinery farmers would hardly be big spenders.

"They would be tough competitors for land, but whether that's good or bad I don't know," said Christensen. "The one thing I'm sure of is my business is selling real estate. If they want to buy, I have no choice."

Candidates refuse to hike bus fares

City Election '77

Q — The Lincoln Transportation System apparently will have a $1 million deficit this year, which must be made up by tax money (including local, state and federal money) A fellow council member is proposing that the fares be raised and service reduced on routes that have few riders How do you vote?

Joe R. Hampton:
No, but I would push for serious consideration to be made on how much are we willing to subsidize what is an essential service. We must establish some priorities on what we are willing to do.

John Robinson:
No. I feel it is necessary to have the capability of transporting large numbers of people (workers) in the most efficient way possible. I do not see a $1 million subsidy as being completely unreasonable

Leo Scherer:
Depends on which routes and amount of increase. However, I do support the bus system and realize that it will probably always operate at a loss. Need better management, improved service and possible combining of routes.

Dorothy Walker:
No. Lincoln must responsibly encourage bus ridership The situation calls for more buses, improved scheduling and more accessible routing In this area monetary investment is necessary to vitalize the mass transit system.

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of six stories on the City Council race. In a departure from traditional campaign coverage, The Star decided to present the candidates with not-so-hypthetical voting situations they might encounter if elected. Each story will feature one vote and the candidates' choice. The candidates' explanations of their votes are presented in their own words, except where the candidate exceeded the 35-word limit.

Sue Bailey:
Bus revenues can only increase with increased ridership Raised fares and reduced service won t lose the captive rider but would drive away all riders who have other options (Vote no)

T. R. Allan:
I would vote "No" on raising fares, and "Yes" on reducing some service on a few rider routes We can't hamper a positive alternative transportation system by raising the fares.

Tax exemption plan clears floor hurdle

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

The proposal to increase tax exemptions for farm and business property finally cleared its first floor barrier in the Unicameral Tuesday.

But another of this session's most watched bills, the measure to increase state aid to schools, suddenly (if temporarily) ran out of steam and fell four votes short of second-stage advancement.

Supporters of the school aid bill, who have been searching for the 30 votes which will be needed to ultimately implement the proposed $20 million hike, cleared the way for advancement of the tax exemption measure by withdrawing a series of proposed amendments to that bill.

Now, Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue says, "the fate of the two bills is tied together."

Lewis, a leader in the school aid effort, said he will "attempt to negotiate a fair distribution of replacement funds" in LB518, the tax exemption proposal, and clear the way for enactment of both bills.

But Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, who is spearheading LB518, is not sure he needs to "negotiate" any settlement.

"If there is to be any kind of deal," Schmit said, "it would only be to Frank's advantage. LB518 is stronger than LB33," the school aid proposal.

Schmit said he is prepared to accept any reasonable amendment which is needed to assure enactment of LB518, but he is currently "against any change in the distribution of replacement money."

Lewis says that is the very change which is needed to cement urban support for the bill.

Earlier, Lewis withdrew his proposal to provide for distribution of state replacement funds on the basis of population of local governmental units.

The distribution of state funds used to replace the local property tax on farm and business property is now based on the value of such property in each governmental unit.

Lewis said he is willing to settle on a compromise distribution formula "so I can support the bill"

Tuesday's vote count on the two bills, although somewhat misleading, tended to give Schmit the upper hand.

LB518 jumped its initial hurdle on a 29-10 vote — with some urban support which might yet be withdrawn.

LB33 remained stuck at the second stage on a 21-18 vote, but some senators who are counted as eventual supporters did not vote to advance the bill at this time.

The possibility of so-called "negotiation" rises out of the fact that both proposals may ultimately need 30 votes to clear possible gubernatorial vetoes and to appropriate the additional funding for school aid.

"What we need is a little finesse on both bills." Lewis smiled "We need a willingness to compromise"

Lewis thinks he is "close" to gathering 30 votes for the school aid proposal. Schmit believes he can see more than 30 already lined up for the tax exemption measure.

"Maybe Frank can pull some votes off the bill," Schmit said. "I don't know. We'll see."

LB518 increases the tax exemption on farm inventory, business inventory and farm equipment from 62½% to 100% over the next three years, and boosts the currently scheduled $53 million in state replacement funding to a ceiling of $70 million in 1980-81.

Efforts to limit the exemptions and remove the replacement lid were voted down Tuesday.

Then opponents of the bill suddenly withdrew further pending amendments to allow the measure to advance.

Moments later, LB33, which would boost school aid in $20 million annual increments to a ceiling of $115 million in 1979-80, screeched to a halt on a 21-18 roll call vote.

"I think we can work something out," Lewis suggested after that setback.

For: Boughn, Carsten, Clark, Cope, Cullan, DeCamp, Duis, Dworak, George, Hasebroock, Hefner, Kahle, Kelly, Keyes, Kremer, Lamb, Luedtke, Maresh, Marsh, Marvel, Merz, Mills, Murphy, Nichol, Rasmussen, Reutzel, Rumery, Savage, Schmit.

Against: Barnett, Brennan, Burrows, Chambers, Fitzgerald, Fowler, Labedz, F. Lewis, Newell, Simon

Absent or Not Voting: Bereuter, Goodrich, Koch, R Lewis, Maxey, Moylan, Stoney, Swigart, Vendiite, Warner

A week without TV isn't as bad as children feared

New York (AP) — Jeff Tewlow wrestled with his brother for half an hour. Vickie Gifford flew a kite, And Susie Kaplan read one long book after another.

After a week of voluntary deprivation, these grade-schoolers and their parents discovered that life without television is not really as bad as some of them had feared.

They assembled at Public School 166 on Manhattan's upper West Side to mark their triumph over the tube, achieved during an experiment to see how television affected them.

While they celebrated an absence of television, their gathering was recorded by cameras from local television stations.

"It was like taking an intruder out of our home," Janet Mervish, mother of two, related at the boisterous gathering.

Set up by Marie Winn, author of "The Plug-in Drug," the experiment was variously lauded as remarkable, exciting and instructive.

A number of parents noted that tube-less times were times without TV-related tension — without combat over which program to watch and without meal schedules geared to the tube.

It also made some aware that they watched TV simply because it was there.

Only one parent voiced criticism of the experiment, and her objection stemmed from the mistaken impression that Miss Winn advocates abolition of television altogether.

"I was amazed at how few negative comments there were," Miss Winn said after handing out slim children's books and chocolate-chip cookies she had baked as rewards at Monday night's gathering.

One young party-goer, named Jonathan, spoke of his mixed reactions:

"At some times I felt good, and at other times I felt bad. The good times were when I forgot all about television, and the bad times were when I found out there were good things to watch."

A random look at the diaries the children kept gives evidence of a life enriched by such enterprises as "helping mommy in the kitchen," doing homework and having a conversation.

"I had a long talk about school," Susannah Kaplan, who gave her age as 7¾, wrote in a diary of one day in the experiment. "Then I drew a big picture. Then I read a long book. I didn't even think about TV."

One mother said she was surprised at the dependency of her 3-year-old daughter on "Sesame Street."

"I hadn't realized it, but she had forgotten how to go into her room and play by herself," the mother said.

Another, Eileen Jacobson, said the tube-less week brought her and her 7-year-old daughter together again for unexpected fun. She listened to the radio and records and, much to her surprise, was "feeling a lot less bored," she said, adding that she and daughter Rachel have decided to cut way down on television.

Many made similar decisions, but 8-year-old Elizabeth Morrison probably did not.

The lure of the tube was so great in the week that ended Sunday, she said, that one night she sat and watched a blank screen.

"I didn't have anything to do," she explained later.

Jobs, water bills split

Washington (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators agreed Tuesday to separate the $4 billion public works jobs bill from the issue of clean water, which has delayed final passage of a key part of President Carter's economic program for six weeks.

The agreement means the jobs bill will go to both houses for quick and routine final approval, possibly by Friday, and then will be sent to the President for signature.

There's little solace

Calais, Maine (AP) — Prompt recovery of their stolen car brought little solace to Mr. and Mrs. Bror Olsson.

Olsson, who owns two restaurants in this Canadian border city, was working at his Wickachee Dining Room Inn when he spotted two men driving his new car out of the parking lot.

The theft was reported to authorities, and the vehicle was spotted a short time later. Police gave chase.

Attempting to elude pursuers, the driver of the stolen car shifted into reverse, speeding backwards into another vehicle and crashing through the front glass window of the Restaurant Angelholm.

The restaurant also is owned by Olsson.

The two suspects fled on foot but were nabbed moments later.

Talks with Hussein end

Washington (AP) — President Carter concluded talks with Jordan's King Hussein Tuesday and said it would be better not to have a Geneva conference on the Middle East "unless we see some strong possibilities for substantial achievements."

Hussein, for his part, told reporters that a Geneva conference "would be a disaster without prior planning and without realistic appraisal of all the difficulties and possibilities for making progress in advance of holding the meetings."

12-year-old compromises with the tax bureaucrats

San Diego (UPI) — Richard Cessna Jr., 12-year-old chief of a company dealing in fertilizer made from horse manure, squeezed a compromise out of the state tax bureaucracy Tuesday in a head-on, personal confrontation.

"I'm happy about it," he said of the agreement he reached for his corporation, Kidco Inc. "The men were very nice to us."

The young corporation president spent 45 minutes in the San Diego offices of the State Board of Equalization. He was summoned there to tell why his firm had not paid sales taxes on the horse manure it has been collecting and selling since last fall.

After his meeting with senior tax representative Bill Atwell, Richard said he was pleased with the compromise. In the future his company will pay sales tax on a portion of its fertilizer sales, Dick said.

The boy was accompanied by his attorney, Richard Morris, who said they did not wish to discuss the matter of back taxes but indicated he hoped Kidco would not be held liable.

Dick and his sisters Ne-Ne, 9, and Betty, 11, and their half sister, June Cole, 14, formed the West Indies-based corporation to handle their multiple business affairs.

Their father operates stables at San Diego Country Estates in Ramona, and they have contracts for maintaining streets, cleaning stables and killing gophers for the mountain community.

The kids estimated they sold $1,000 worth of fertilizer a month.

Atwell told them they are subject to Regulation 1588, which requires a sales tax on all fertilizer unless it is used for agricultural purposes.

Kidco sells its fertilizer to new homeowners in the development as well as to landscapers. The young president said the firm had no records to indicate what percentage of its sales was for agricultural use, but he said detailed records would be kept from now on.

"We'll all discuss the tax matters," he said when asked who on his board would be the tax expert.

When Dick entered the tax office, he was given an application to fill out for a sales permit, and he dutifully penciled in his answers for awhile before asking Atwell for help.

"My dad has to pay taxes on the feed and the sawdust," Dick told the tax man, arguing that taxing the fertilizer residue was double taxation

The Kidco directors were nattily dressed in cowboy clothing and cowboy boots, and the president wore his cowboy hat.

Kidco's plight became a major media event in San Diego when the news got out that the state tax people were after the company.

Abandoned eaglet put in foster nest

Orlando, Fla. (UPI) — For the second time in three days, an abandoned eaglet has been successfully placed in a "foster nest," an experiment that until last week had been accomplished only three times in the United States.

"Mr. Hancock," the second of two eaglets abandoned by their parents two weeks ago in Winter Haven, was successfully placed in a foster nest Sunday afternoon.

"It had been done only three times," Doris Mager, the Florida Audubon Society's consultant on birds of prey, said Monday, "and now we've done it twice in three days."

On Friday, the first eaglet, "Miss Thorny," was placed in a nest near Lake Harney in Seminole County. The 7-week-old bald eaglet made her first flight the same day and was observed soaring with her foster parents, Mrs. Mager said.

With the assistance of Orlando Aerial Club members, Mrs. Mager took Mr. Hancock to a small island in the Kissimmee chain of lakes in Osceola County, where he was placed in a nest Sunday with two young birds.

A professional tree climber, William D. Rodgers, climbed into the eagle nest to place the eaglet while the adult birds watched from a perch in a nearby tree, Mrs. Mager said.

"We watched while Mr. Hancock tested his wings a few times, then settled into the nest with the other two birds," she said. "It was very successful."

The experiment was risky, Mrs. Mager said, and she checked with wildlife experts in Wisconsin and Maine before proceeding.

"The adult birds could have turned on the immatures, and even killed them," Mrs. Mager said, "but in both cases the young birds were accepted immediately."

If the eaglets had not been placed in foster nests, where they will spend the next four to six weeks with adult birds that will teach them to hunt for food, they would have had to remain in captivity.

"It was worth all the time and risks to see those birds set free," Mrs. Mager said.

New sheriff chosen

Eldora, Iowa (UPI) — The Hardin County Board of Supervisors have chosen a successor to ousted Sheriff Robert Callaway. Named to the post was James Collins, 40, the assistant police chief of Eldora.

Brando plans TV series on Indians

Marlon Brando, who reportedly has been paid $4.2 million for 12 days' film work in London, says he plans to launch a television series about the history of the American Indian.

The portly, pony-tailed Brando told a news conference he hopes the as yet unproduced series will influence Americans to improve the lives of Indians, a group he long has championed.

Brando went to Britain to portray the father of Superman in a movie of the same name.

Tax refunds too much of a good thing

A federal prosecutor said Monday in Chicago that Sharp filed 117 tax returns, seeking a total of $134,550 in refunds.

Sharp was charged with filing a false tax return and receiving a $1,274 refund check. He surrendered to federal authorities Monday.

Not 'one of the boys'

Mary Pughes, 17, of Holy Family High School in Denver, was removed from a runoff election for "head boy" at the school after 192 boys in the school decided a "head boy" should be just that.

Miss Pughes' name was removed from the runoff ballot despite the fact she tied for the position, and that girls outnumber boys in the school, 2 to 1.

Robber runs to bank

West Des Moines, Iowa (UPI) — In an unusual robbery at a Dial Finance Co. office, a holdup man armed with a pistol ordered an employe to write a check and rushed to a nearby bank to cash it before the police were called.

Police said the man told employes he wanted to talk to the manager about a loan. During the conversation, the man pulled a gun and demanded cash, police said.

When told the office had only a small amount of cash, police said, the man ordered the manager to write a check for $1,000, then locked the manager and two employes in a bathroom. The bandit ran across a parking lot to the First National Bank of West Des Moines, cashed the check and fled in a car.

The employes were able to free themselves within 10 minutes and called police.

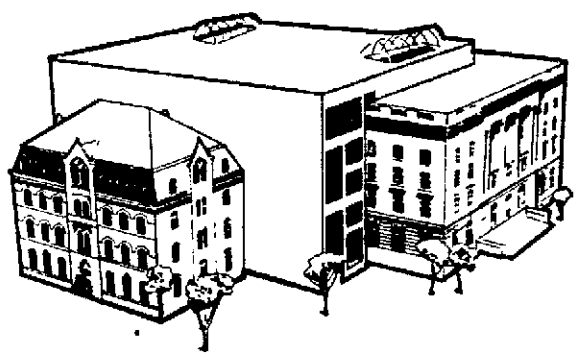
The Civic Center...and its supporters



The plan calls for the renovation and preservation of Old City Hall and the Old Federal Building.

It would provide needed city office space for Lincoln at a bargain rate. A 2,500 seat theatre would be housed within the large "U"-shaped opening on the south side of the Federal Building.

The theatre would host a variety of popular and preforming arts attractions throughout the year. If approved, the project could be completed by 1979.

Comparison figures show that the cost of the Civic Center Complex is a bargain in 1977.

If the Civic Center concept is approved by the voters, the Old Federal Building will be a gift to the city. The total cost of completing the project is reliably estimated at or below $7 million, or $25.37 per square foot. This is less than half the cost of new construction.

Occupancy cost to the city for the entire complex would be $1.90 per square foot per year (maintenance, utilities, etc.) The cost of the new construction and renovation would be $3.27 per square foot per year during the period of the financing (20 years). This compares favorably to the cost of downtown rental space now ranging from $4.00 to $8.00 per square foot per year.

What would the Civic Center cost the taxpayer? Based on the average assessed tax valuation of homes in Lincoln, the average household would pay about 3 cents a day . . . and just one cent a day at the end of the financing period.

By funding the project through the issuance of general obligation bonds, the city's authorized spending limit would not be affected. Funds would not be diverted from other projects.

These Lincolnites are actively supporting Lincoln's Civic Center Project . . .

February Group plans visit to its leader

(c) New York Times

Washington — It calls itself the February Group It meets in Washington hotels, irregularly

It is planning a visit to its secluded former leader, thousands of miles away.

Its members were active in politics. But some who have been approached to join have stayed away "I wonder if they thought they were a government in exile, plotting a takeover," said one non-joiner, not entirely flippantly

The February Group is composed of more than 130 people who served as aides in the Nixon White House, many of them former advance men, who get together every six to eight weeks for drinks, mainly to keep in touch But they do not talk much about the past

"I didn t hear much reminiscing at last week s meeting," said Kenneth R Cole, the former chief of the Domestic Council who is now vice president of Union Camp Corp in Wayne, N J "I heard a lot of talk about what people are doing now, and not much about what they did in the past "

W Dewey Clower, first a White House advance man and then assistant director of the Domestic Council for intergovernmental relations, talked to former President Richard M. Nixon in January 1975 and then organized the first meeting, a luncheon, Feb 10, 1975 The date was the reason for the group's name, Clower said

He said more than 50 members had expressed interest in chartering a plane to visit the former president in San Clemente, Calif , a prospect that Nixon welcomed, but they discarded an initial idea of going on the Fourth of July weekend because many had made holiday plans The current plan is to pick a time "sometime after Labor Day," he said.

The San Clemente visit has been talked about for months, but some members of the February Group, many of whom began interviews by saying "please don't use my name,' fear it would bring unwelcome publicity

One regular participant who said he felt that way observed that the group had become gradually more relaxed. The first meeting, he said, had "a slight feeling of a reunion of the Black Sox," the baseball team that threw the 1919 World Series

Clower, now head of the Food Processing Machinery and Supplies Association, was the only one to mention political prospects for the group, saying that its members had political experience that "might be vaulable to the Republican National Committee " He arranged for Bill Brock, chairman of the national committee, to speak to the group last week

But another member who also did not want his name used said "We just go keep in touch and have drinks at $2 25 apiece. We don't even have very many drinks at that price "

"No one is talking about a political renewal for Mr Nixon or his followers," said Cole, "unless you include the people who have had too many drinks There aren't many of them "

Nixon interview to lead off with Watergate

Hollywood (UPI) — Richard Nixon's televised interviews with David Frost, beginning May 4, will lead off with the ex-president s views of Watergate, a spokesman for Frost said Tuesday

The other three interviews, at weekly intervals, are titled "Nixon and the World," "War at Home and Abroad" and "Nixon s Final Days "

Taping of the four 90-minute interviews was completed last week near the Nixon home in Orange County.

Nixon wore his customary blue business suit during the interviews as a dozen Secret Service men guarded the secluded South Laguna Beach home where the shows were taped for Frost s Paradine Production Co

The set consists of a fireplace and a pair of easy chairs flanking a coffee table None of the furniture or decorations was from the Nixon's home in San Clemente

A spokesman for Frost said some 135 stations will telecast the show, augmented by radio stations which also have bought the programs

The former president was reportedly paid $600,000 by a consortium, called Syndicast, which was organized by Frost Taping of the shows was done by Pacific Video, a Hollywood production facility which provided the crew and technical apparatus

Air-power loom

Tokyo (AP) — Nissan Motor Co said it has succeeded in development of a shuttleless air-power loom that can weave high-quality textures at three times the speed of the shuttle looms currently used

If you need convincing . . .

Wilmette, Ill (AP) — If you need convincing that crime doesn t pay just ask the robber who held up a Brink s Inc armored truck driver — and escaped with bags stuffed with cancelled checks

The man accousted the driver, Bernard Burton, as he stopped to make a pickup at the Wilmette Bank, police said The robber put Burton in his van and tied him up, then let him go when the robber switched to a getaway car about four blocks away

Carl Stanley, Wilmette Bank board chairman, said only cancelled checks were taken He said the theft would disrupt record keeping for a few days but noted that the bank had microfilm copies of all the checks.

In search of an enemy

Russell Baker

New York — Most Americans have lived through enough wars to realize that you can't have a war without an enemy. Now, however, President Carter has declared the moral equivalent of war, and the combat lines are fuzzy.

We have never fought a moral equivalent of war before, so there is no experience to tell us whether we need an enemy or not. The acronym for moral equivalent of war is, of course, MEOW, which makes it sound like a pussy-cat affair, but one should not count too much on the happenstance of alphabet in trying to foresee the development of this unusual affair.

The President seems to think he can conduct a MEOW successfully with nothing more for an enemy than that unconvincing old bogey, the energy crisis. This seems doubtful in view of the frequent polls showing that perhaps half the population doesn't believe there is an energy crisis.

A handsome majority of Americans, if congressmen are to be believed, are ready to fight anybody who tries to cut down on their motoring pleasure, energy crisis or not. Since this is precisely what Carter aims to do, he is in danger of losing the moral equivalent in the opening skirmishes unless he can produce a more blood-curdling enemy than the energy crisis.

The reasons so many Americans do not believe in the energy crisis are too occult to bear much rational examination. One may be the flaccidity of the term itself; "energy crisis" is a limp and bloodless abstraction which does not fire the imagination to the white heat needed to animate combat. For nearly 50 years now Americans have lived constantly with one crisis or another, many of them with a much fiercer sound than "energy crisis," and survived to drive bigger cars than ever.

Nor can we ignore the simple-minded but powerful belief that the oil will simply never run out. Many Americans, obviously, are as incapable of believing that oil is finite as youth is of believing it can ever die or children are of believing they can ever grow old.

Here is a simple immutable refusal to accept reality, or to face life if you will. Refusing to face life is not an altogether unuseful human characteristic, since life is often more than many a poor devil can tolerate if it has to be faced fulltime. In any event, to many Americans, facing a life without gasoline is trial too bleak to be contemplated. Unless Carter finds ways to bring them under his banner, he is badly launched on his moral equivalent and may have his bones picked at the Capitol by Christmas.

To enlist troops on his side he may require an enemy more interesting than the energy crisis. For this reason, this is not the best of times for the oil, gas and coal industries. They are already in low repute, and particularly the oil and gas people for their healthy profits following upon the Arab embargo of 1973.

The coal people, with their resistance to the surprisingly strong environmental-protection movement, also come with a large ready-made supply of enemies. If one were a president gravely beset in the moral equivalent of battle, and if one desperately needed an enemy who would rally the masses to the battle, one might be tempted to point the sword at the oil, gas and coal folks.

This is not to suggest that the President wants such a battle. The producers have mighty weapons of their own in Congress, and no president challenges them except at grave peril. Nevertheless, the producers must naturally feel a bit uneasier than usual about the new situation.

The necessities of their position force them to take issue with the main line of the President's energy policy. This aims at reducing consumption by raising prices and recycling the profits back into the economy as incentives to conservation. Not unnaturally, the producers find this a cumbersome, ineffectual and deleterious interference with the free market. Being market operators, they naturally want to take the profits from price rises and redistribute them as they believe wisest for the economy.

Their early line on the President's program has it that he has erred by emphasizing conservation rather than new production. To increase production, they say, requires more money incentives for the industry.

The economies of this argument are infinitely debatable, but the politics of it may be very dangerous for the producers. Already suspect by public opinion, they are asking for a greater share of the pie at a time when everybody's fuel bills are about to soar again. By arguing that production rather than conservation is the key to an energy solution, they are challenging the President's declaration that the fuel is running out. To the half of the country that believes in the energy crisis, it may seem a profligate position.

If the President needs an enemy for his moral equivalent, the producers sit directly in the line of fire. It would be some MEOW.

Auto repair ripoffs exposed

Jack Anderson

Washington — Buried in the confidential files of the Transportation Department is evidence that more than one-third of the automobiles on the road have dangerously defective brakes. Yet a shocking percentage of automobile repairs, including the work done on brakes, is unnecessary.

We have obtained the confidential findings of five federal diagnostic centers, which have inspected 100,000 cars before and after they were repaired by private mechanics. Nearly 35 per cent of the cars examined had defective brakes. "In states without inspection, such as Alabama," the confidential study declares, "the total failure rate can be as high as 95 per cent, while the brake failure rate was 50 per cent."

The centers also found that nearly one-third of the repairs at service stations, car dealers, chain stores and garages were either incompetent or unnecessary. Thus, consumers waste 32 cents of every dollar they spend to fix their cars. This adds up to a staggering $10 billion a year across the nation.

Gray clouds cover labor's future

Kevin Phillips

Washington — Those gray clouds forming over the political future of organized labor have nothing to do with cigar smoke or any other unfair union stereotypes.

For years, we've heard that the United States was becoming a white-collar country, its population tipping toward the Sun Belt And that organized labor, with its blue-collar base in the industrial North, would lose influence accordingly. Yet until recently, labor's political clout has grown. Now perhaps destiny is finally catching up with demography. In mid-April, Labor Secretary F. Ray Marshall told an AFL-CIO building trades conference that "We must face the hard reality that anti-union forces are growing in strength. These are difficult times for the American labor movement."

Certainly Jimmy Carter, the first Democratic president in 50 years elected without meaningful early labor support, is turning out to be a major embarrassment for the AFL-CIO hierarchy. On minimum wage, situs picketing, repeal of Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, protection for the shoe industry, and a number of lesser issues, Georgian Carter has opposed or stood aloof from the labor position. Republican Gerald Ford could hardly have been less helpful.

But does labor have any alternative leader or potential president within Democratic Party ranks? Probably not.

And there has been plenty of other bad 1976-77 political news for union leaders. Not only did their presidential candidates stumble in the primaries, but union-shop prohibitions prospered at the state level, Louisiana enacted a right-to-work law in 1976, and Arkansas voters blocked an AFL-CIO attempt to modify that state's union-shop ban by a solid 2-1 majority.

This year, three congressional by-elections or primaries have already been held, and labor failed in all three.

Even at the local level, labor is fumbling key contests.

Part of the explanation lies in labor market trends forcing labor organizers to follow employee shifts to the "right-to-work" states of the Sun Belt and mushrooming ranks of state, local and municipal employees.

With luck, then, the United States can avoid much of the burden that excessive union political clout has imposed on Britain and the British economy. But in another sense, that international comparison is unfair. Measured against labor movement behavior in Britain, France and Italy, U.S. unions are a model of responsibility, and it's worth remembering that the political influence they now seem to be losing has rarely been used in a destructive way.

Rebates or revenue?

New York — The architect of President Carter's energy program, James R. Schlesinger, has raised the distinct possibility that substantial revenues from the new energy-related taxes eventually would be diverted to tax and welfare reform programs.

That makes much sense but it's not exactly the impression that was at first created by Carter's energy messages. The President did concede at his news conference last week that he couldn't "certify today that every nickel of the taxes collected will be refunded to consumers." That, he said, was because "we still have to have some flexibility."

The question had been specifically asked, however — and repeated — whether there would be a diversion of the new revenues to welfare and other reforms. In light of Schlesinger's remarks on the CBS "Face the Nation" program Sunday, Carter's news conference answers appear unresponsive if not evasive.

The administration did propose to rebate all energy-related tax revenues to the public "in the early years," Schlesinger said. But, he continued.

"We have not committed ourselves to the later years, because we wanted to integrate our energy proposals into welfare reform and into tax reform . . . The President would like to have some flexibility."

Carter's vague response may have been politically more prudent, but what Schlesinger said makes more long-term sense. Particularly as people become accustomed to the higher price of gasoline and plan their budgets and activities accordingly, the need to rebate every penny collected in additional gasoline taxes should diminish or even disappear.

Most earlier gasoline tax proposals, in fact, have included tax rebates only to low-income persons who had to depend on their automobiles for getting to and from work. Admittedly, making that kind of distinction among drivers — either by exempting a minimum amount of gas from the tax or by rebating only to low-income persons — would be more complex to administer and might be open to charges of inequity.

Tom Wicker

Nevertheless, it does not seem to make sense — to use an example provided by Steven Rattner of The New York Times Washington Bureau — for a family driving 17,558 miles on 1,255 gallons per year in cars getting about 14 miles per gallon to make a profit on the proposed gasoline tax. If such a family continued driving as usual, they would pay $627.50 annually in taxes in 1985, when the full 50-cents-per-gallon tax presumably would be in effect — but would get a rebate of $735, for a profit of $107.50.

In fact, to a layman at least, a general rebate of the gasoline tax does not seem to promise much reduction in gasoline consumption. The tax might give lower-income drivers a cash-flow problem, since they would be paying higher prices all year, before a one-shot rebate at the end of the year. But drivers would not actually be paying more in the long-run. So why curtail driving? As the oil companies like to say, where's the incentive?

Shouldn't driving, too, be made actually to cost what it's worth, if it's the aim of the Carter energy program to make all energy cost what it's worth? If so, it's hard to see the purpose of the promised gasoline tax rebates, other than to cushion early-year hardships, and to sustain low-income drivers — unless the promise of rebates is being held out now to make the tax more politically acceptable, while the long-range intention is to keep all or much of the revenue, as Schlesinger seemed to suggest.

If that is the ultimate aim, Carter might do better to fight the issue through now with Schlesingerian candor, and not just to avoid later charges of reneging on the rebates; it also makes more sense (A) to make driving costly enough to achieve real conservation, and (B) to tap the immense potential of revenues from what is essentially an increased user tax.

Those revenues, moreover, need not be used only to replace the costs of tax and welfare reform; they could also be legitimately invested in numerous energy and transportation projects. There is a difference only in degree in imposing a four-cent gas tax to build the Interstate Highway system, and raising that tax to 50 cents to help pay for mass transit or for rebuilding antiquated railway road-beds.

Carter's political judgment may well be that the promise of full gasoline-tax rebates is needed to win public and congressional approval even of the proposed standby tax. If so, the rebate legislation still could be limited in duration, to permit sensible reconsideration within a few years.

Bailey, Robinson lead list of City Council candidates

Lincoln would be well served, in our opinion, if voters returned incumbent City Council members Sue Bailey and John Robinson to office. Their names, along with four others, will be on the general election ballot next Tuesday.

Amidst reports and charges of bickering which allegedly hampers the effectiveness of Lincoln city government, the central truth remains that this city's municipal government has been basically open, honest, effective and responsive. And the contributions of Sue Bailey and John Robinson loom large in that assessment.

Mrs. Bailey does not direct her energies to only a few issues. Although she has taken the lead in such areas as calling for a realistic look at the energy situation as it relates to Lincoln and investigating the potential for the use of solid waste as a fuel, and has been active in efforts to keep Lincoln General Hospital operations publicly accountable, Mrs. Bailey takes the same in-depth, methodical approach to all issues facing the city.

She is a restraining force on the council: careful — some would say to a fault; we say to a constructive, necessary degree — and disposed to consider every option or consequence before making a decision. She is more likely to rely on professional and informed guidance in decision-making than other council members — another indication of the careful approach.

Robinson's forte is in his ability to work well with people — constituents, city administrators and council colleagues. Despite an occasional blast at a council member he may disagree with, Robinson usually can succeed at taking the edge off council bickering.

During his first term Robinson took the lead in bringing about a change for the better in police-community relations. He has been supportive of neighborhood organizations and their attempts to influence city government decisions.

Like Mrs. Bailey, Robinson is an adherent of balanced physical growth of the city and, like Mrs. Bailey, it is his nature to consider private sector requests in the contest of how they affect the public interest.

Most important, both incumbents are committed to lending an ear to citizens and encouraging citizen participation in government and both are committed to open government.

The presence of Mrs. Bailey and Robinson on the council is essential for the representation of a wide range of views and philosophies of managing city affairs. The Star recommends the re-election of both.

The Star considers Leo Scherer and Dorothy Walker the leading candidates for the one remaining council seat. Despite the fact that they view city problems from a somewhat different perspective, both have commendable attributes and we have no trouble in suggesting that Lincoln voters take a close look at both Mrs. Walker and Scherer.

As a newcomer to city politics, Mrs. Walker has run an organized, thoughtful, positive, informative, issue-oriented campaign. She has proposed a number of new ideas, such as the formation of a Neighborhood Advisory Council, and she has reintroduced some old ideas which should have remained buried, such as putting all major capital improvements projects to a public vote (What are city councils for but to decide such questions?). But what is important is that she is thinking about solving city problems. She has touched base on about every issue from the hospital controversy to the need to restructure electric rates to redlining to concern for senior citizens. Although it may have been self-serving, Mrs. Walker properly raised the conflict of interest issue and she was the first to file a statement of financial worth.

Hers has been a provocative, interesting campaign and with seasoning we think she would be an able member of the council.

No nonincumbent candidate is as qualified by experience for the council job as Scherer. The Havelock businessman covered city government for many years as a reporter. He was administrative assistant to former Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and Gov. Jim Exon and was community development director under Schwartzkopf following duty at the statehouse. As community development director, Scherer was instrumental in getting City Hall involved with the neighborhoods.

There are a number of issues on which we disagree with Scherer and we regard his campaign as being a negative one in some respects. But there is no doubting his experience, desire to serve, integrity, independence and openness. Scherer, as one of the two candidates holding liquor licenses, has said he will declare a conflict and not vote on liquor issues.

The remaining candidates are T. R. Allan, a commercial real estate salesman and investor whose youth and abilities mark him as a potential force in city politics for a long time to come, and Joseph Hampton, a veteran member of the Lincoln Airport Authority and a businessman-investor. Hampton has a long record of service in public and business affairs and volunteer work and we respect that record. However, The Star believes that the potential for conflict of interest arising from Hampton being a shopping center owner, homebuilder and liquor licensee would be an obstacle in the path of his being an effective member of the council. He has not, in our opinion, satisfactorily spelled out to the pubic how he would deal with potential conflicts if elected.

Diplomacy and sports

Richard Worsnop

Washington — It was embarrassing. During a trip to the Soviet Union in 1959, a group of Americans in their twenties visited a summer camp of the Pioneers, a Communist Party organization for youngsters between the ages of 7 and 15. After a tour of the facilities and a program of folk dancing, the American men paired off against the older Pioneer boys in a game of volleyball. The memory is still vivid. They clobbered us.

These thoughts are prompted by the recent visit to Cuba of an American basketball team and the reaction thereto. The American players, drawn from two South Dakota college squads, were no match for the powerful Cuban national team. But the good will generated by the visit was thought to have compensated for the lopsidedness of the scores.

Red Auerbach, general manager of the Boston Celtics, vehemently disagreed. In his view the United States should have fielded a stronger team against the Cubans. The Castro government, he asserted, was sure to exploit the American team's weak showing for propaganda purposes.

It is an old debate, made familiar by constant repetition. One school of thought holds that international sports competition helps to promote better understanding among peoples, if not necessarily among their respective governments. The opposing, or Auerbach, school contends that contests between teams representing different countries are thinly disguised political battles in which all benefits accrue to the winner.

The truth probably lies somewhere in between. In 1971, for example, a U.S. ping-pong team paid a surprise visit to China and was defeated in exhibition matches played after several days of travel through the country. The trip actually was an important diplomatic event, leading as it did to President Nixon's visit to China the following year.

The future course of U.S.-Cuban relations, in sports or in diplomacy, is difficult to ascertain at present. Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn vetoed a proposed Cuban exhibition tour by the New York Yankees, but he later gave his blessing to a post-season trip by a team of major league all-stars.

In any event, it is easy to understand why many politicians are fascinated by sport and try to bend it to their own purposes. There are few clear victories in politics except at election time, but in sports everyone can tell who won and who lost.

"FROM ALL THE FUSS, WE MIGHT AS WELL HAVE PROPOSED SOMETHING TOUGH"

The rural aged

By Paul Haskins
ERR Staff Writer

Washington — If you are like most Americans, you rarely see them. They suffer silently, too proud to plead, too tired to raise a fuss, too distant to be heard. They are this nation's five and a half million rural elderly, and they've never had it so bad.

Two of every five Americans aged 65 or older live in small towns or on farms. One of every three elderly persons living outside metropolitan areas is poor. Throughout the countryside, infirmity and isolation conspire to deny life staples and health care to older individuals, often regardless of income.

The nation's great migration from farm to city during and since World War II loosened the rigid family structure that had served the rural population so well for centuries. Before the war, younger family members routinely supported the old and feeble, fully expecting the same eventual treatment from their own children.

Between 1940 and 1970, however, rural areas experienced a net loss of five million residents — mostly young people lured away by the promise of jobs in the city. More recently, the trend has slowed. But existing federal programs and understaffed local agencies can't handle the problems that the exodus created for those left behind.

Prompted by the emergence of a vigilant older persons' lobby in Washington, lately Congress has displayed more concern for the special needs of the elderly. The Senate recently voted to preserve the Special Committee on Aging despite a major push to consolidate or eliminate all special committees.

Despite the promise held out by such gestures, lawmakers still haven't broken from the historical pattern of concentrating a disproportionate share of federal funds in the cities.

Testifying before the Senate committee two years ago, Jack Ossofsky, head of the National Council on the Aging, noted that 75% of federal poverty funds go to the cities, where only 50% of the nation's poor reside. According to Ossofsky, farms and villages account for 60% of the nation's substandard housing.

Widespread misconceptions concerning the quality of life in the country-side persist, obscuring the condition of the rural elderly and preserving the welfare system's urban bias. With fuel prices soaring, the problem could be compounded. Social service agencies will be forced to abandon many existing and projected programs in rural areas if transportation costs become prohibitive. Approximately 150 private bus companies have discontinued service in rural areas since 1960.

Former sportsman would support boycott

Today's Mail

Tired of taxes

Beatrice, Neb.

Seems as if the present Legislature wants to tax the working class Nebraskans completely out of the hunting, fishing and camping sports. Has anyone else questioned why the hunting and fishing license was doubled and plus, and the new habitat stamp was initiated, supposedly to improve the parks, etc.?

Now legislation for a $7.50 users tax has been sent to Governor Exon, this charge for any vehicle entering a state park! We've already been taxed nearly to death for the little amount of time one has to spend on relaxation. Why should we pay again for a right that we have already been taxed for?

Apparently a total boycott of the Game and Parks Commission's follies is needed by the working class, by refusing to buy licenses or to pay this users fee permit, to wake up the commission and the present "tax-'em-to-death" Legislature to the fact that Nebraska sportsmen are getting fed up with the policy of sticking it to the working man.

Thank God for Senator Chambers! If only about 30 or more senators would listen, the working man might have a chance in Nebraska!

EX-HUNTER

Hampton activities

Lincoln, Neb.

Joe Hampton is running for City Council because he has long been a person who cares about his community. He has demonstrated this by his many and varied activities.

Some of his more significant involvements are: member, Advisory Council to the University of Nebraska, executive committee, U.S. Council of Small Business, member, National Sensible Growth Co-ordination Council member, Monitoring Committee of Goals and Policy Committee, 1961 president of Home Builders Association of Lincoln, member, the original Mayor's Human Relations Council; past chairman, current vice-chairman and 14-year-member, Lincoln Airport Authority; member, Friends of Higher Education; past member, Mayor's Code Study Committee; member, Goals and Policies Committee; volunteer, Boy Scouts; member, First Lutheran Church; and member, Sertoma Club.

He is a person of integrity and the people of Lincoln would be fortunate if he were elected to our City Council.

For Mr. Holmgren to say we need to know all Joe Hampton's investments and where they are located is ludicrous. Each and every one of the people running for City Council has either investments or some other interest that could be construed to be the basis for a conflict of interest from time to time. The criterion we should demand is that the person be open-minded and a person of integrity. Joe's track record certainly proves he is.

Questions for Hampton

Lincoln, Neb.

Will City Council Candidate Joe Hampton respond to the following questions?

What was Hampton's part in bringing to Lincoln a few days prior to the 1975 city general election agitators from Boulder, Colorado, and Madison, Wisconsin? One astute political observer judged this tactic as "nonsense campaigning."

Is it a continuation of this "nonsense campaigning" that Hampton's list of financial contributors to his campaign remains secret? How should this lack of responsiveness to the voter's right to know be judged?

I'm sure Mr. Hampton as a businessman wants to have all the facts about a situation before making a judgment to act. Shouldn't Hampton want the voters of Lincoln to have all the facts before asking them to make a judgment as to whom they will elect to the City Council?

CHARLES P. BROWN

Abortion figures

Weston, Neb.

After reading about animal cruelty charges being filed against an actor and film director for killing a fish with a rock, I find myself wondering if maybe our society isn't confused about its priorities.

In 1976, there were 3,977 abortions performed in Nebraska. And yet because of a Supreme Court decision, no charges of cruelty were filed against anyone.

In most of these cases, a suction method was used that tears the baby into pieces. Think how cruel that is.

The reason given for 2,546 abortions in this state was parental determination. Does this mean the decision was made by the parents? How are our children going to realize they have to take on the responsibilites of their own actions, if Mom and Dad always fix it so they won't have any problems? They are letting them believe it is o. k. to kill if they will be freed of a burden.

It won't take long, I have read — 20 to 30 years — before Sonny and Sissy will consider their parents a burden, so the old folks should watch out. They will be allowed to exist only if they can measure up to certain standards of independence, physical perfection or their usefulness to others.

Allowing abortion and doing absolutely nothing to stop it have opened the door to euthanasia. It is time to close the doors on both. Abortion is cold-blooded murder where the baby gets the death penalty.

DELORES RATKOVEC

Grim Statistics

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to comment on the picture and story: "Farmer Gets Spring Helpers," by Dean Terrill in the April 20 Star, Page 27.

The photo showed two young children riding as passengers on a fram tractor with their father for an afternoon's work in the field. Mother was gone, so Dad was baby-sitting. It would have been much better to hire a baby-sitter or have the children play in some safe place in the field where Dad could observe them while he was working.

Here are the facts about what has happened to other Nebraska farm children who were carried as passengers on farm tractors, machines or wagons. Since 1969 we know of cases where 22 children ranging from three to 14 years of age were fatally injured when they fell from a farm tractor or wagon. Many were crushed by the tractor or wagon wheels. Other children fell into the path of a rotary mower, hay sled or some other towed implement. We have already lost an eight-year-old and a three-year-old this year in falls from tractors. In addition we know of about 23 cases where tractor operators or a passenger ranging from 15 to 82 years of age fell from or were thrown from farm tractors or towed implements. They were crushed to death by the tractor or fell into the path of an implement. This needless, costly loss of life could be prevented if the operators of agricultural equipment would follow one important safety rule: "DO NOT CARRY PASSENGERS."

We have carried this safety message to the rural people of Nebraska through agricultural safety programs for the last 16 years. As a result of these safety programs, the number of accidents has been reduced, injuries prevented and lives saved.

Dominick Costello, farm editor, does a good job in promoting farm safety. We hope that in the future, other Star staff members will also become more safety conscious and print pictures and stories which depict safety to readers rather than those that glorify potentially hazardous situations.

Phony baloney

Lincoln, Neb.

We are in our 45th year of a planned economy. The only other countries worse are Sweden and England, and Sweden is discovering its mistakes and getting out from under. England probably never will.

In the third world, are all these pitiful savages? So — we reduce our standard of living so that theirs can be increased! Increased to the point of which they are entirely unfamiliar. But no matter; we will teach them the assembly line and conspicuous consumption of material goods.

Our energy shortage is a phony baloney to transfer our wealth by the planners to the have-nots in the third world. We could have all the Arabian oil we could use if we should stop our food exports to them.

Open doors

Lincoln, Neb.

I strongly urge support for John Robinson in his bid for re-election to the City Council. I believe John sincerely works to represent the people of the city. John has worked to open city government to all people. Let's protect our investment in his experience.

Scherer, Sikyta

Lincoln, Neb.

I am concerned with the problem Councilman Sikyta outlined in the April 21 Star. He said: The council and Mayor Boosalis seem to be unable any longer to co-operate to settle on issues. We are a personality-voting council, not an issue-voting council."

Having read everything that City Council Candidate Leo Scherer's committee has said about his qualifications and campaign issues, I feel very strongly that voting for Scherer on May 3 will help Councilman Sikyta straighten out city government policy and all Lincoln citizens will feel we have a sense of trust and security in city government that we do not have today.

His dogs are his life

This poodle must have done something wrong.

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

Roughly 68 years ago, when most of us were still in the unforseeable future, Victor Julian, then 6, began working with dogs.

Now, he's 74, still working with dogs and has no intention of quitting until he's dead.

"By George, I get a little winded occasionally, but I'll never stop," said Julian, a dapper, mustached Englishman, all of 5-foot-6 and 120 pounds.

Moving about in the straight-armed, bowing-from-the-waist, cane-and-derby tradition, Julian works with an act of about 20 dogs for Shrine circuses coast to coast.

"It's the kind of business you have to love. Go, go, go, all the time. There's no business like show business," he chuckled.

Where he's gone, gone, gone, has been to programs that exposed him to millions.

At one time, he was considered the No. 1 animal act for the Ed Sullivan Show and had a standing invitation to return anytime.

"He told me that whenever I was in the area just call him up and he'd cancel something and put me on," Julian said. "Oh, he was such a beautiful man."

Julian appeared 15 times on the show.

He also did nearly three years in Las Vegas where promoters are still seeking his return.

"Oh God, I'd never go back there. The air's so bad for me. And working all those nights. Oh my," he said.

Julian, the senior act in the Sesostris Shrine Circus in Lincoln this week, said he almost exclusively works for the Shriners now.

"They're such good people. I always enjoy being with them," he smiled.

And if you like wholesome entertainment, it doesn't get much wholesomer than this:

"The Pope has given me special permission to do a program for the Monastary of the Mother of God in Springfield, Mass. That's a group of cloistered nuns, you know," he said.

Julian is unmarried and his only love affair is with his dogs, 27 of them, who he talks to like people.

"Dogs are just like people. They have feelings, some are smarter than others — but, damn, these here are spoiled rotten," he said looking into his dog cubicles and smiling to the chorus of yelps, whines and barks.

And he doesn't say those words lightly.

"Back in England, where I started, I used to have a cemetery for my dogs," he said. "I always keep my dogs until they die. I never give them away."

When he came to the United States, he was given a small plot of land in Medora, N.D., where he buries his animals. He showed pictures of one of his dogs being buried in a silk-lined coffin, a treatment he gives all of them.

"They're all equal to me," he said. "I have no favorites."

The dogs eat meat and vegetable stews, sleep in individual cubicles and are kept so clean there's no dog odor in Julian's massive travel van.

"I've never had trouble with the cruelty people," he said. "In fact near the (Canadian) border where I cross at Buffalo, they know me well enough to know I take good care of my pets," he said.

Julian comes from a circus family and learned animal training from his father. He left England about 15 years ago.

"I had monkeys then, but they told me I had to cut down my act. American shows have too many acts," he said. "So I took the monkeys out of the act and kept them until they all died."

Travel van is kept spotless.

Cockroach may predict quakes

Sacramento, Calif. (AP) — Scorn not the lowly cockroach. It may be more sensitive to approaching earthquakes than the most advanced scientific instruments.

That was the message from David Stewart, director of the MacCarthy Geophysics Laboratory at the University of North Carolina, to a Geological Society of America meeting on earthquakes.

Stewart said a study by the National Earthquake Information Service indicates that restlessness in cockroaches can foreshadow an earthquake.

But he conceded that scientists haven't figured out why it is that a wide range of animals apparently have earthquake-predicting ability. He cited reports of earthquakes being preceded by such events as catfish leaving muddy river bottoms, rats fleeing houses and horses refusing to go into their stalls.

Whether the animals are reacting to physical changes or some kind of extrasensory signal, Stewart said, perhaps scientists can use them to do what their instruments can't — pinpoint the timing of a quake.

Circus is alive, well, in Lincoln

The circus isn't dying. It's not even fading away.

"There was a time when it was down, but now it's making a comeback," said Grace McIntosh, producer of the Sesostris Shrine Circus underway in Lincoln.

"I think it's because of the quality of movies and entertainment that's available," she said.

"People are longing for more wholesome entertainment. These movies are so bloodthirsty," she grimaced. "And I think circuses and ice shows are real good family entertainment."

Mrs. McIntosh has been producing circuses for 12 years; this being her ninth year working in Lincoln. Before her producing career, she was a trapeze artist.

A sign of her optimism is her work schedule. She's able to squeeze in a vacation in June and one in January. The rest of the year she's on the road doing about a show a week.

She explained that for awhile, circuses had a slowdown, but never enough to kill the business.

In fact, things are so good that a school for circus performers is prospering in Sarasota, Fla.

"It was never really bad," she said. "I never lost any work."

She said one factor that made circuses look like they were on the outs was the death of "the big top," that titantic tent that characterized a circus for so many years.

"When Ringling Bros. dropped their big top, everyone thought they wouldn't be around much longer," she said. "But several circuses still use tents. We have a tent."

Her job has changed somewhat in that she's not booking one solid circus as producers did in the past.

The acts and programs travel independently a lot and she gathers together the types and numbers of acts that will suit a certain location.

She produces shows from five acts to the gigantic, almost three-hour show which takes place annually in Rochester, N.Y.

RE-ELECT JOHN ROBINSON CITY COUNCIL

Over $10,000 needed to live in austerity

Washington (AP) — An urban family of four requires $16,236 a year for a "moderate" standard of living and, for the first time, needs more than $10,000 to maintain an "austere" living standard, the Labor Department said Tuesday.

The same family living at a level allowing some luxuries needs $23,759 a year, the department said in its annual analysis of hypothetical family budgets.

The costs were calculated for fall 1976. Compared to a year earlier, the income requirements rose 4.7 per cent, or $241, for the austere budget to $10,041; 6 per cent, or $736, for the moderate budget, and 6.6 per cent, or $1,259, for the higher budget over the previous year.

By comparison, the size of such budgets a year earlier rose between 7 and 8.2 per cent, and the year before that such annual costs increased between 12.4 and 14.2 per cent. Last year's smaller increase reflected the slowing of inflation.

Fluorocarbon aerosol spray nearer ban

Wasington (UPI) — Two government agencies Tuesday announced the final steps toward an eventual ban on the use of flurocarbon gases in aerosol sprays for cosmetics, hair sprays, household cleaners and scores of similar products.

Both the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission said they would publish notices Friday requiring such products to carry the warning label the FDA proposed last fall until they are formally banned.

The label would read:

"Warning: Contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

Carter opposes co-op measure

Washington (AP) — The Carter administration parted company with consumer groups Tuesday and opposed legislation designed to encourage development of consumer cooperatives.

The legislation would establish a new federal agency to make an annual $250 million in low-interest loans to nonprofit consumer-owned co-ops. supporters say the loan program would encourage the growth of food and service cooperatives.

Consumer groups say the co-ops lower prices to consumers while industry groups say they provide unfair competition to businesses trying to make a profit.

Assassination Committee budget wins OK

Washington (UPI) — The House Committee on Assassinations won narrow preliminary approval of a $2.5 million budget Tuesday. On a 10-7 vote, the House Administration Committee approved the budget for the remainder of this year for the panel to carry on its investigation of the John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. killings.

FANNIE THOMAS would represent All school interests. Elect her to SCHOOL BOARD on May 3rd.

Hospital cost lid opposed

Washington (UPI) — Doctors and hospitals will join forces to fight President Carter's proposed 9% annual ceiling on hospital cost increases, the president of the American Hospital Association said Tuesday.

But Walter McNerney, president of the Blue Cross Association, representing the giant Blue Cross health care provider, and two other insurance groups tentatively endorsed the plan.

Whatever the outcome in Congress, where hearings on the proposal will begin May 11, hospital patients next year can expect to pay at least 9% more for hospital care than they would for similar services this year.

Under Carter's proposal hospital charges would be restricted, in effect, by a 9% ceiling after Oct. 1. However, there is little incentive in the proposal for hospitals to hold cost increases below 9%.

The only exception, said William Fullerton of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which drafted the plan, is a provision allowing hospitals with increases below 9% next year to make up the difference the following year.

The hospital industry needs larger increases than 9% a year if it is to avoid cutbacks in patient services, AHA President J. Alexander McMahon said at a news conference.

He said the administration proposal "will receive united opposition from both hospitals and physicians."

"We will tell Congress right out why hospital costs have risen," he said.

Of the 15% annual increase in hospital costs in recent years, 10% is due to inflation and the rest to improved patient services, McMahon said.

TWA has loss

New York (AP) — Trans World Airlines Inc. said Friday that it lost $48.9 million, or $3.51 a share, in the first quarter, compared with a net loss of $45.8 million, or $3.39 a share, a year earlier.

"I will fight the excessive use of outside consultants, costly studies, and unnecessary spending."

Story of Hollywood family's disintegration short on insight

By Jim Camden
Star Staff Writer

Book Review

For people who like books about the personalities of the stage and screen, "Haywire" by Brooke Hayward meets all the requirements.

The book is a first-person account of the daughter of a famous actress, Margaret Sullavan, and a famous producer, Leland Hayward. It has personal accounts of the family by other Hollywood personalities to give an extra dimension to the story. And the book is liberally littered with personal disasters that seem so tragic in the great — divorce, suicide, insanity and physical infirmity.

But Ms. Hayward's book, which has been steadily climbing up the bestseller lists for several months, is not quite all it could be. It is better than many books about famous people for it does not use the kiss and tell method of storytelling. She handles her recollections of her early childhood very well.

But the book does not quite lend enough insight into why or how people who have so much enjoy it so little. And some of the passages from other celebrities do not add to the story, but merely titillate the reader by confusing him enough to read further to find out what exactly this person is writing about.

Brooke Hayward is the oldest of three children born into a star-studded environment in America's dreamland, Hollywood. Her father was the agent for most big stars of the 30s and 40s, and they dropped in sporadically. Jimmy Stewart and Henry Fonda lived down the street, and Peter and Jane Fonda were the young Haywards' playmates. Brooke was on the cover of Life magazine at age 15.

But, as "Haywire" recounts, life was not so rosy for the family. The parents divorced after 10 years of marriage. By the time Brooke was 24, her mother had committed suicide and her sister had died tragically. Her brother was in and out of mental institutions. She was a divorcee with two children.

Margaret Sullavan left acting, where she was superb, to become a mother, where she was only marginal the book says. When she later went back to acting, she carried with her the feeling of inadequacy as a homemaker.

Leland Hayward comes across as a man who loves his work but the strain from it nearly kills him. The children all butt heads with their parents like most adolescents but on a much grander scale.

Ms. Hayward's family accounts are fullest in the years before she was 6. After that, the events begin to space themselves further apart until she is jumping through her teen-age years at too rapid a pace and without enough analysis of what was happening to the family.

She also has a problem in telling about the final break-up of the family which may be responsible for much of the mental anguish the family suffered. She was away at the time, and is forced to relate it in a "she said this, but later he said that" formula.

Despite its shortcomings, however, "Haywire" is a book that reads easily through its 325 pages. It offers an account which is both the story of a family and a story of show business.

The New York Times listed the following books on its bestseller list this week:

Fiction

1. Oliver's Story, Erich Segal.
2. Trinity, Leon Uris.
3. The Crash of '79, Paul E. Erdman.
4. Falconer, John Cheever.
5. The Chancellor Manuscript, Robert Ludlum.
6. How to Save Your Own Life, Erica Jong.
7. Raise the Titanic! Clive Cussler.
8. The Valhalla Exchange, Harry Patterson.
9. Condominium, John D. MacDonald.
10. A Book of Common Prayer, Joan Didion.

Nonfiction

1. Roots, Alex Haley.
2. Passages, Gail Sheehy.
3. Your Erroneous Zones, Wayne W. Dyer.
4. Changing, Liv Ullmann.
5. The Gamesman, Michael Maccoby.
6. Haywire, Brooke Hayward.
7. The Grass is Always Greener over the Septic Tank, Erma Bombeck.
8. The David Kopay Story, David Kopay and Perry Deane Young.
9. Majesty, Robert Lacey.
10. The Hite Report, Shere Hite.

What about men with beer bellies, tight T-shirts?

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to DISGUSTED IN BOSTON about his concern for beauty on the streets and in the shopping centers. "Queen-sized" women in tight pants are indeed unsightly, if not klutzy.

However, has it occurred to DISGUSTED that while he is so zealously championing legislation against such visual pollution, he might also include certain male klutzes?

I refer to men with offensively protruding beer bellies thinly covered by overstretched T-shirts. Trousers cannot begin to scale such heights and dutifully ride low, all the better to reveal proud displays of ridiculously laden, overstuffed abdomens.

You see, DISGUSTED, there are two sides to every coin and, really, personal decorum rests with the individual. Or should we also attempt to make illegal body odor, runs in stockings, nail biting, etc.?

Poor taste is hardly a matter for legislation, and while there is much to be said for a More Beautiful America, surely there are more weighty problems on which we should expend our efforts!

SEES BOTH SIDES IN N.C.

DEAR BOTH: It's only fair to show both sides. And I'm on yours.

DEAR ABBY: I am steaming mad about all of the pollution going on. Not just air and water pollution, but littering. Today at lunch, I saw a middle-aged woman sit in her car in a restaurant parking lot and throw not ONE but THREE paper napkins out the window.

Being responsible citizens, my girlfriend and I picked them up and calmly handed them back to her through her open window and said, "I think you dropped these."

At this point she got hot and mouthy. I calmly informed her that what she did was against the law and was called "littering." Then I walked away.

What kind of example is the older generation setting for young people today if this is their normal practice?

SUSIE IN W. COVINA

DEAR SUSIE: A very bad one. And good for you and your girlfriend for having the courage and taking the time to do as you did.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069.

Theatre galas to raise funds

New York (UPI) — Two theatrical groups will hold benefits at Joseph Papp's Public Theatre April 11 and 18 to raise funds to permit them to accept an invitation to the 1977 World Theatre Festival in Nancy, France, April 29-May 8.

The festival does not cover travel expenses, so Spiderwoman Theatre, a feminist theater group, and Theatre of Latin America (TALA) are hoping the two galas will raise enough money for the trip.

Opening lead — two of spades.

This deal comes from a rubber bridge game. It is a fine example of the "Look before you leap" doctrine that is so important in bridge. Declarer was in four hearts and West led the deuce of spades, on which East played the king and South the jack!

East returned a spade, won by declarer with the ace. South drew trumps, led the queen of diamonds and finessed. East won with the king but was helpless. He could cash the ace of clubs either now or later, but that was the best he could do. So South lost a spade, a diamond and a club and made four hearts.

Now let's go back to trick one and see what would have happened had South taken the king of spades with the ace. Probably most players in South's shoes would win the first trick, but they would live to regret it.

Declarer draws trumps and tries a diamond finesse, whereupon East wins with the king and returns a spade to West's queen. It is then automatic for West to lead a club and East would cash three club tricks to put the contract down two.

The reason for ducking the king of spades is certainly sound enough. South cannot afford to have West on lead later in the play to attack dummy's king of clubs. West is the dangerous opponent and must be kept out of the lead at all costs.

Conceding the first trick to East is no hardship at all. It severs East-West communications and is bound to limit the losers to a spade, a diamond and a club.

The play itself is surely not difficult; the problem is to think of it before playing to the first trick. That is why a competent declarer always plans his play from the moment dummy appears — and looks before he leaps!

Nuclear dump in oceans topic

Washington (AP) — The Carter administration is discussing with foreign allies the idea of establishing burial grounds on the bottom of the ocean where all nations could store their nuclear wastes.

Most energy conservation proposals are not new

It's Your Money By Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — You may be surprised to hear that this country has already taken many important steps toward energy conservation and planning. President Carter made it sound last week as if policymakers have been sitting around sucking their thumbs over the issue, but that's just not true. We could do more, and will. But in general, Carter's proposals are an extension of energy policies already in place. Here are some of the things that have been accomplished in the three and a half years since the Arab oil embargo:

- Controlled U.S. oil and natural gas prices have been allowed to rise drastically. In 1973, a barrel of U.S. crude cost $3.39, and natural gas was 18.6¢ per thousand cubic feet at the wellhead. Today, new U.S. oil is in the $11.25 range, and natural gas is $1.42.

Oil companies complain that drilling is less profitable, despite the higher prices, because of increased costs and changes in the tax law. But those "less profitable" prices have encouraged an enormous amount of new exploration. Nearly 40,000 new oil and gas wells were drilled in the United States last year, the largest number since 1965.

Higher prices at the gasoline pump caused a falloff in sales to drivers after the embargo, but last year demand began climbing at pre-embargo rates.

Carter would continue this thrust toward higher prices. But the increases will be phased in gradually, and the gas tax would be paid back in rebates, so it probably won't cramp your driving style as much as you might think.

—Mandatory gas-efficiency standards for new autos have already vastly improved mileage over what is used to be. Between shifting to smaller cars and building more efficient engines, automakers have increased new car mileage 34% in the last three years.

Carter proposes to hasten the switch to better mileage by putting a tax on cars that consume a lot of fuel and giving a rebate to buyers of gas-efficient cars.

—Energy efficiency standards and labeling requirements were mandated under the Ford administration for major home appliances such as refrigerators. They require a 20% improvement in efficiency by 1980, as compared to 1972. Carter would get this program moving faster.

Current law also calls for setting national energy efficiency standards, to be incorporated into state and local building codes. Carter would accelerate the date for publishing those standards from 1981 to 1980.

—The amount of domestic oil available for use has been increased since the Arab oil embargo (although total production is down). Three Naval petroleum reserves are now open for production and the fourth, in Alaska, for limited exploration. The Alaskan oil pipeline will be completed this summer. According to the Oil & Gas Journal, it will increase production an average of around 275,000 barrels per day this year and 1.2 million barrels per day in 1978.

—The Federal Energy Administration already has the authority to order oil or gas-fuel power plants to switch to coal. About 25 have changed over since 1974, another 50 are under orders to do so, and more orders will be coming. Of the 143 nonnuclear power plants designed since 1974 and approved by the FEA, 142 will burn coal (and probably the remaining one will, too).

$200 million put into new hotels

Hong Kong (UPI) — More than $200 million had been invested in hotels in Hong Kong since 1962, said David Newbigging, chairman of the Hong Kong Tourist Association.

"Tourist facilities in Hong Kong have been materially improved in recent years, indeed, unrecognizably so compared with 1962. In that year, there were 3,422 hotel rooms in Hong Kong, while by the end of 1976 there were approximately 13,500; an investment of over $200 million during that period, which excludes the value of the land utilized," Newbigging said.

Powell, Jaworski on speakers list

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell, former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell are among well-known legal figures who will address the 5th Federal Circuit Judicial Conference in Birmingham May 1-4.

Jaworski will open Law Day activities May 1 at the Church of the Advent, where a special service will be conducted.

The conference will formally open at 9 a.m. with the introduction of new district judges by 5th Circuit Chief Judge John Brown. At 10 a.m. Brown will deliver the traditional State of the Circuit address and at noon Powell will speak.

The Birmingham and Alabama Bar Associations will host the conference.

Postcard By Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — On Sunday morning I rattled the front door and shouted up the stairs: "Earthquake! Earthquake!"

But the moppets only groaned and dived under the covers. The dachsund came down wagging her tail. Sat down and waited for emergency instructions.

We're all expecting an earthquake. I decided we should have earthquake drills.

Nobody knows when we will have a quake.

Says an earthquake writer: "It may be in the next second. It may be in the next hundred years. All we know is we are one day closer."

Oh, oh! I turned on the radio. Got an early-rising parson: "And so I say unto you friends, let your hearts be lifted up."

☆ ☆ ☆

One thing we stacked up for the earthquake is a bag of charcoal. I said: "The electricity will be off. No gas. The wooden coat hangers won't last long.

"But — we'll have the hibachi to cook on."

We have a hatchet. A Swiss Army knife. (With the corkscrew to open wine bottles. I hope it was a good wine year. The bottle we open when the ground shakes.)

We have a book of earthquake instructions. "Keep a small battery-powered radio handy. Tune in to emergency channels and you will be told what to do."

☆ ☆ ☆

No getting moppets out of the downy on Sunday — no school — for practice earthquakes.

It was a fine day out. (Don't let it shake today, Good Lord. We're planning to go to the pool.)

"O, ye of little faith!" said the preacher on the radio.

When I had their attention last night, I read from the instruction book: "Watch out for roofs caving in. Protect your head. Get under a table."

I said: "We'll use the dining room table. The dog can get under the coffee table."

The Organization Man. The Silver Fox of Sinking Inn.

☆ ☆ ☆

The children said: "Where will we get food to cook on the hibachi?"

I said: "We've got a couple of cans of chili beans in the cupboard. Actually, we should start making friends with some Mormons."

The Church of Latter Day Saints advised all members to lay in one full year of food supplies. Just for any emergency. The Church — like the earthquake people — doesn't know when it's coming. But we're one day closer.

The dachshund got bored waiting for me to put on a show. Went over and laid down in the sunny doorway.

"Stand in a doorway," says the earthquake book. "The frame doorway will protect your head from falling objects."

The children decided the Mormons they are going to make friends with are "Donny and Marie", the Mormons on the spangly, singing TV show. (We've got to do something about the jokes on that program. If I have to listen to those jokes, I'd rather not eat.)

"Therefore, have no fear," said the TV parson.

Habit governs your life rhythm

To Your Good Health

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It is well known that the closer we regulate the timing of our eating and sleeping habits the better our bodies will be. Please comment as to why. — A.S.

You've posed one of those frustrating questions — too interesting to pass by, yet too complex to answer sufficiently in this space.

"You are talking about what is called "biologic rhythm," which is all around us in nature. Insects and animals change color, bears hibernate, trees shed leaves, snakes their skin, and you your hair (daily, whether you notice it or not). Menstruation is a form of biologic rhytym.

With humans, habit rather than instinct usually governs individual rhythms of life. A person long accustomed to day work should allow for body adjustment to new rhythms when being transferred to nights, and vice versa. Certain glands, particularly the adrenals and the thyroid, must get into step with the new living habits.

The jet travel age has fostered research in this area. Jet lag is nothing but the forcible interruption in biological rhythm as one speeds across time zones, dinner times and sleeping hours. Some firms are telling executives to give their bodies a day or two to adjust before engaging in serious business after such trips.

You ask about eating habits specifically. The stomach empties itself on a rhythmic basis. The process is faster during the day when we are active, slower at night when we are at rest Yet when the stomach is empty at any time hunger occurs. Diabetics or persons with the opposite condition (low blood sugar) must eat at regular intervals to establish the proper rhythm of sugar use by the body. Irregular eating habits can mess up the rhythm of the digestive tract and cause constipation. This is seen often in college students who fail to reestablish eating rhythm after leaving mom's regular three squares back home.

More studies are being conducted into this whole area. Why, for example, is body temperature higher late in the day and lowest early in the morning, and has this anything to do with the fact that some folks are grumpy in the morning?

Obviously, the closer one conforms to his or her own individual biologic rhythm the better it is for general health. This is particularly true of three of the most important body rhythms — eating, sleeping and elimination.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a niece. 10 years old who has had strep throat about every six weeks for the past two years or so. She is given an antibiotic and is okay until the next bout. It puzzles me why doctors are so against removing tonsils. Don't you think removal would help cure her? — Mrs. E. K.

If the tonsils are enlarged or diseased, yes. Otherwise, removal would not have any effect. Youngsters sometimes get over this proneness to throat infections with time.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson has an odor from his hair. Her perspires a lot about the head and his hair gets soaking wet. His mother shampoos his hair on a Sunday and by Tuesday his hair smells again. What could cause this? — M.P.

The odor is caused by bacteria acting on the scalp sweat and oils in the hair. If he's old enough have him shampoo himself every day or every other day. This will keep bacteria at a minimum. Try a germicidal shampoo. The same applies to underarm odor, the culprits being hair, moisture and bacteria.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you get tetnaus from any wound? I also have heard you should get a shot against tetanus once every eight years. Is this true? — Miss E. H.

You can get tetanus from any wound, but it is more likely to stem from "dirty" wounds as one involving contact with the ground or from a puncture as in stepping on a nail. The tetanus organism needs an absence of oxygen to thrive, such as is provided by the oxygen-free state deep in tissue.

After initial immunization, a booster is recommended every 10 years. In our drug-oriented society it is interesting to note that persons dependent on addicting drugs are more prone to tetanus than others.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Out of curiosity I'd like to know how aspirin helps relieve arthritis pain. Do you have material on arthritis? — J. H.

Since the cause of arthritis is not really understood, how various drugs affect it exactly is not quite clear. Aspirin has an anti-inflammatory effect similar to cortisone. Too, it dulls pain centers in the brain.

Dr Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Health Tip

There are four basic taste sensations: sweet, sour, salty and bitter.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out the receptors for taste are located mostly on the tongue, although there are a few taste buds on the soft palate and epiglottis.

The taste buds on the tongue are found at the tip, on the sides, and at the back. Taste buds are more plentiful in babies than in old people.

Although taste buds look alike under a microscope, different taste buds produce different sensations. Those at the back of the tongue transmit a bitter sensation. Taste buds at the tip of the tongue generally produce a sensation of sweetness.

Taste buds along the sides near the tip and back of the tongue are related to the taste sensation of saltiness. Sour sensations are transmitted by taste buds along the sides, but toward the back of the tongue.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out if your mouth were completely dry, you would not be able to taste anything. Taste sensations occur only when the substance in the mouth has been moistened. usually, the salivary glands provide sufficient quantity of moisture to assure taste.

Although fazed by winter, musk thistle ready to be fought

Associated Press

Now is the time, say experts at the University of Nebraska, for the state s farmers to launch their annual battle against that tenacious pasture pest, the musk thistle

University of Nebraska-Lincoln weed specialists say musk thistle should be sprayed when it is in the rosette stage, or when the leaves are still in a "flat pattern" close to the ground

Once the plant starts to "shoot" the flower stalks, it becomes more difficult to kill with chemicals

The past winter probably was tough on musk thistle in central Nebraska, according to Fred Roeth, Extension weed control specialist at UNL's South Central Station in Clay Center

At a research site near Ord, only about 50% of the must thistle rosettes survived the winter, in contrast to near 100% survival in the winter of 1975-76

"Survival probably averaged higher than 50% across the state, because the Ord site is on exposed upland terrain devoid of ground cover for protection," Roeth said At any rate, enough survived to make normal treatment necessary, he said

April weather has been ideal for rapid growth and the normal spring treatment dates, by the end of April in southeast Nebraska and by May 10 in other parts of the state are recommended, he said

Herbicides to use are 2, 4-D plus Banvel, Roeth said

Good coverage is important, and chemicals should be applied when daytime temperatures are 60 degree fahrenheit or above he added The combination of 2, 4-D and Banvel has provided slightly better control in UNL tests, Roeth said

Neither treatment will likely give 100% control, so some follow up chopping will be necessary, ' he said Only by preventing seed production can we hope to stop musk thistle

RE-ELECT JOHN ROBINSON CITY COUNCIL

Scientists monitor temperature of soil

More farmers are watching soil temperatures each year as they learn the importance of adequate warmth to germinate seed activate chemicals and fertilizers and get their crops off to a good start

The University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources is recording soil temperatures and presenting the data to the National Weather Service office at Omaha daily

We are reporting the temperatures at the two- and four-inch depth as a seven-day running average," said Dr Ralph Neild of the Department of Horticulture

Neild said farmers start planting corn when the soil is at 55 degrees sorghum and soybeans when the soil is at 60 degrees

Corn planted late in April can take three weeks to come up while that planted in late May will be up in eight days Early planted corn tends to yield better, so farmers want to get it in the ground as early as possible," he said

Neild said many farmers fear frost needlessly "We haven't had corn freeze off in the spring since 1925 You do get damage to seed planted too early from soil-borne diseases, so you can get a poor stand if the ground is too cold,' he said

Neild said garden crops such as spinach can be planted as cool as 38 degrees in the soil, but plants that orginated in the tropics such as sweet potatoes must wait until June

Beginning today the soil temperatures as recorded at the NU field laboratory at Mead will be carried daily through the planting season with the Star's weather data

Court rules illegitimate children may inherit

(c) Washington Star

Washington — States may not take away completely from children born out of wedlock the right to inherit property from their fathers, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday

The decision, splitting the court 5-4, apparently nullifies the laws of 22 states

Those laws provide that such a child has no right to inherit from his father if the father died without writing a will

The court majority, in an opinion that appears to give children of unwed parents broader constitutional protection than they have previously had, struck down an Illinois law

But 21 other states have similar laws, and those, too, presumably fall because of the new decision

Justice Lewis F Powell Jr , speaking for the majority, said that these laws punish children for something over which they have no control — the failure of their parents to get married

States, Powell said, may not attempt "to influence the actions of men and women by imposing sanctions on the children born of their illegitimate relationships "

Candidates quizzed about teachers' pay

City Election '77

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Teachers have walked picket lines, been thrown into jail and lost their jobs to protest poor wages.

Earlier this year, Omaha teachers gathered en masse outside the board of education meeting room to show how they felt about their plight The Omaha board gave in, and the teachers got a raise

Kansas City, Mo., schools have been closed for several weeks because teachers couldn't reach an agreement with the board of education Several teachers have been jailed, property damage amounts are climbing and students are getting an extended vacation

In Lincoln, negotiations between the local Board of Education and the Lincoln Education Association, the bargaining representatives for the schools have been proceeding quietly on schedule

Teachers are proposing a pay-benefits package that would increase their salaries by $500, but shorten their working year by five days to 185. The Star asked eight Lincoln Board of Education candidates if they would favor the higher salary and shorter working year

Challenger Steve Slaikeu said he would favor the shorter working year, possibly by starting the year later, and adding a longer spring break for students

"That would especially benefit families who want to plan vacations," he added

On the matter of salary, "we need to look at the teachers who no longer find teaching a rewarding career, and ask why We can't dump them out in the cold without finding out why they have lost their effectiveness" he said

Slaikeu said he supports the teachers' proposals allowing a "phasing out period" for teachers to be retrained in another field, but cautioned that "we must keep an eye on their enthusiasm, so they don't become ineffective teachers during that period" More money would improve their outlook, he added

Milan Wall said that a base salary for a teacher with four years of college is less than a lot of other, similarly trained people get in "jobs a lot less fundamental to society"

Teachers shouldn't expect to "hire into the system at a high (salary) level since the first three years are probationary," but there should be some way of "rewarding a teacher who proves to be a good teacher," he said

"Few teachers seem to benefit from the extra days they have to spend in conferences, though few will readily admit that," he added

Wall said he favors a shorter year, with the extra five days probably pared out from the days set aside for snow days

It would be a year-end bonus after a long hard winter, for students and teachers alike if they could get out a few days early, he said

Incumbent Pearl Goldenstein said she'd rather not comment on the teacher negotiations since the board currently is deliberating on the subject, but incumbent Lou Roper said that the board doesn't have "a lot of latitude in the salary situation"

"We should try to be fair and equitable in dealing with wages, since the cost of living is going up, and we should compensate," he said

Roper noted the state mandates 175 student-teacher contact days and that "doesn't leave a lot of days we could cut out

Fannie Thomas said she believes that teachers should have a salary comparable with that of their peers (other teachers in neighboring states)

We need quality teachers and money will get that quality in most cases," she added

As for a shorter year, "people always say that kids don't do much those last few days they're in school, but the law says they have to be there, so they should They're out three months as it is, and they forget things in that time," she said

Lynn Mortensen said that all teachers are overworked and underpaid. They're overloaded and under stress

But, she said, "I'd want to see all the facts before making a decision on a shorter year There are alternatives, and I'd be open to most of them So far all I've heard is the teachers' side, and I'd want more facts

Jerry Waechter agrees that teachers are grossly underpaid

They don't get money for vacations (Christmas etc and even though they're off about three months they can't really hold down another job," she said

"Other teachers get more money (in other school districts) and I don't feel the Lincoln demands are that unreasonable," she added

Incumbent Stan Linnertz said he is interested in quality education.

"Frankly, there's no magic to 190 days I'm more interested in quality than quantity. I run my business on the basis that I'm not as concerned about the number of hours somebody puts in as I am about the quality of the work they do

"We should pay the teachers as many dollars as the taxpayers can afford to give them If they can do the same job in a shorter time, let's pay them but let's get the job done," he said.

Competency test not widely liked

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

City Election '77

The focus of national attention on education has narrowed to the basics — reading, writing and arithmetic

Educators and parents are concerned about competency of students Schools in Tidewater Va , have adopted and no-pass, no promotion policy for all grades Numerous others are considering competency tests for graduating seniors

The issue is coming closer to home Omaha s District 66 will require that seniors pass a competency test before graduation with the results printed on their diplomas this year

How do local school board candidates feel about competency testing for seniors? The Star asked the eight people running for four vacancies on the Lincoln Board of Education to cast their vote for or against

Seven spoke out against such tests with incumbent board member Lou Roper casting the lone affirmative vote

Roper seeking re election to his four-year school board seat said There s a definite need for it

Ours is a competitive world to give a student a free ride out of school would be to encourage students that life is a bed of roses he said

Roper noted that only about 20 of the graduates from Lincoln s four high schools will go to college The other 80% will enter the working world and they must have some skills on which to rely

We face constant criticism from the community and employers because our young people are poorly prepared to cope with the world that lies ahead of them Only if we test can we be sure that we have prepared them he said

Challenger Milan Wall also seeking a four-year seat said it would be a mistake to establish a test based system

It would be easy for teachers to teach only for the test to make sure that their students pass to avoid personal criticism and embarrassment he said

Wall would oppose encouragement of only the test for fear that other aspects of education would be forgotten, he said

Incumbent four-year member Pearl Goldenstein kept her response short

Minimums would become maximums she said Minimum competency could become the maximum knowledge learned

Challenger Fannie Thomas, seeking a two-year seat on the board said she favors testing on all levels but earlier in a student s career To test only at the end would probably be too late she said

Challenger Lynn Mortensen a four-year candidate said that such testing could be a risk and a probable sacrifice of other skills

We need to teach survival skills and add to the three R s such things as respect and responsibility she said

Steve Slaikeu, a four-year challenger said that tests tend to label a student

Competency testing would not be an effective method of determining competency All students have a different capacity and to flunk a test wouldn t necessarily mean that a given student wasn t worthy of a diploma he said

Incumbent two-year member Stan Linnertz said he feels that students don t take tests seriously enough for one final test to have any impact

It s tough to get an honest evaluation from something that doesn t challenge the student that isn t taken seriously by a student We re spending a lot of money on education, we ve got to use that money to prepare a student to cope with things other than just a test, he said

Four-year challenger Jerry Waechter said that tests shouldn t be used as the end result but as a guideline

We shouldn t be testing just seniors We need to get into a child s performance early in his education and use tests to pattern his future growth, she said

Ed board hopefuls asked about busing

City Election '77

Busing to achieve racial equality has brought criticism school closings and property damage to various parts of the country

Will busing come to Lincoln? That may be the only way to get students from overcrowded buildings to schools with space bringing them in from the fringe areas to less crowded central schools

The Star asked eight Lincoln Board of Education candidates how they would vote on the issue of busing and what would be alternatives to solve the crowding situation

Incumbent board member Pearl Goldenstein said the approach should be a 'many-pronged one involving more than just the school board

It s a problem we re handling pretty well now The students who are being bused have helped us see the future needs of the system,' she said

The school population is decreasing and "we must be energy conscious Busing won t be the ultimate answer We need the help of realtors, planners and parents to answer the question she added

Incumbent Lou Roper agrees The building fund has no money left for new buildings We need to bus students to the larger capacity buildings Student enrollment has dropped from 31 000 to 26,500 creating space in a lot of buildings

We re faced with more busing there are no buildings where the kids are This is probably the single most important problem facing the board in years to come he said

Challenger Steve Slaikeu said ' we have to face facts and use the facilities we have

The schools have been built too close together, through the actions of past boards But sometimes these things are beyond our control be added

Slaikeu says that parents should have some say in where schools are built They can tell you where they want to live then the board will know where the schools are needed

Milan Wall said he feels the solutions are clear-cut build buildings or bus children

"Beyond that, the board should take into account the importance of keeping life in existing buildings, making the neighborhood schools places where parents will want to send their children instead of wanting to move to newer parts of town to get to the better schools, he said

Busing should be avoided for energy conservation reasons and the people should accept the fact that older buildings may have to be converted to other than school uses Wall added

Mrs Jerry Waechter said she sees no other way to solve the problem but to bus

My children have been bused for several years To be realistic about it it has to be the solution We don t have the money to build schools all over the city, although neighborhood schools are a nice thing she said

Lynn Mortensen suggested perhaps turning buildings into specialty schools serving to attract students for different reasons "But that s a few years down the road

Our first priority should be to send kids to schools closest to their homes Those who live outside a particular boundary could be picked up by extended bus routes and sent to the nearest school with available room she said

Challenger Fannie Thomas says that busing should be used to meet an end but "parents must have some say in the whole thing "

There are pros and cons on busing and I don t really support it It s an emotional thing for the children and nobody knows how it will affect them, really she said

Incumbent Stan Linnertz said that busing isn t the number one answer

It s a lot like the city comprehensive plan The town is growing to the north and west and I think that s a challenge to us to utilize all our resources he said

Linnertz favors neighborhood walk-in schools, but they need to fit into the long range plans we have to solve the growth issue, he said

Senators stagger sunset reviews

Associated Press

Unicameral members accepted one significant amendment to the sunset bill Tuesday but rejected another on fiscal review of the Education Department.

State senators voted 26 to 0 to adopt an amendment by Scotia Sen. Dennis Rasmussen. It would require staggering the review of four major agencies in the bill, LB257.

The theory behind LB257 is that after periodic reviews agencies that are deemed unjustified could be eliminated.

Rasmussen's plan calls for the Department of Economic Development to be monitored the first year, the State Office of Planning and Programming the second, the Revenue Department the third, and the Department of Administrative Services the fourth year.

Before the amendment, the bill had two agencies slated for review the first year and the other two the second.

Also in the measure for review are a few small state agencies as part of getting the program under way.

Rasmussen said the less stringent timetable was designed to avoid swamping the program from the start.

Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis and Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak added the major agencies three weeks ago by floor amendment, but Dworak also wanted the Education Department reviewed.

Because the Education Department has constitutional authorization, however, it couldn't be phased out of existence as could statutory agencies under such sunset legislation.

Dworak acknowledged the Education Department can't be phased out, but he wanted a performance audit of the agency anyway.

Dworak reminded his colleagues that they had favored the idea a few weeks earlier.

His colleagues turned thumbs down Tuesday, however, voting 13 to 14 against the plan. Opposing the Columbus lawmaker in floor speeches were several senators, including Rasmussen.

The bill, after the amending process was held at the second stage of floor action, pending possible further amendment proposals.

Legislature rejects longevity pay raise

Associated Press

Lawmakers Tuesday rejected a plan to add an escalating longevity pay increase atop the normal pay boost for state employes.

Voting 6 to 17, senators rejected an amendment by Omaha Sen. Dave Newell. The amendment, proposed for budget bill LB530, would have established this scale:

One to 5 years service, 2%; 6-10, 3%; 11-15, 4%; 16 or more, 5%.

Regular pay boosts for state employes in fiscal 1977-78 targeted in the bill are for 3% plus $240.

The Newell plan was designed to dovetail with the same scale adopted earlier by the Appropriations Committee for the State Patrol only.

If this proposal is good enough for the State Patrol, it's good enough for the groundskeepers, said Newell, who earlier branded the state a "cheap" employer.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich estimated the Newell plan would cost the state $7.5 million or more. Newell thought it would be less. Lincoln Sen. Shirley Marsh opposed the plan because of tight revenues. Sens. Goodrich and Marsh are on the Appropriations Committee.

The only amendment adopted to LB530, one of the minor bills in the budget package, would insure that state employe salary money isn't used for other things. The amendment appeared aimed at fiscal year's end excess funds.

The amendment, by Ralston Sen. Gerald Koch, was adopted with the approval of budget panel members on a 28-2 tally. The measure sailed over its second round hurdle on a voice vote after the amending process was completed.

Boughn pledges fight of railroad abandonment

Associated Press

Norfolk Sen. Keith Boughn said Tuesday he would lead opposition to a proposal by the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad to abandon service along 172 miles of track from Norfolk to Winner, S.D.

Boughn said he and Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh and Elroy Hefner of Coleridge may offer a legislative resolution opposing such abandonment of lines running through their districts.

Boughn said the senators plan to meet with some Public Service Commission members and PSC counsel to discuss the matter.

The line serves 14 towns in Nebraska and the abandonment is opposed by the Public Service Commission.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has not set a hearing date on the request.

The railroad first proposed abandonment in 1974 and the Save Our Railroads organization was formed by South Dakota and Nebraska residents.

Nebraska towns in the line include Hadar, Pierce, Foster, Plainview, Creighton, Winnetoon, Verdigre, Niobrara, Verdel, Monowi, Lynch, Bristow, Spencer and Anoka.

Age-discrimination ban, amendment, advanced

Associated Press

Unicameral members added an entire bill Tuesday to a measure banning employment discrimination because of age.

The resulting combined bill, LB162, won voice vote advancement after the addition of an amendment that amounted to LB535.

The amendment was a bill to de-regulate Labor Department monitoring of employment agencies that charge employers not employes the placement fee.

Several lawmakers, including members of the Business and Labor Committee which reviewed LB535, said the addition was noncontroversial.

The amendment was attached on a 28-1 vote before the bill won advancement over its second Unicameral floor hurdle.

Legislators reject plan to make wheat-promoting tax voluntary

Associated Press

The Unicameral Tuesday rejected an amendment to make wheat excise tax payments voluntary if they exceed $5.

Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills proposed the amendment to LB390, the Agriculture and Environment Committee's bill to increase the wheat excise tax from 2.5 to 5 mills per bushel sold.

The amendment was defeated 18 to 16.

Mills contended that wheat growers should have the same option as soybean growers to pay the tax.

The wheat tax is used by the Nebraska Wheat Development, Utilization and Marketing Committee.

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood argued against the amendment saying it would torpedo the efforts of the wheat committee.

Sen. Sam Callan of Hemingford said he will propose other amendments Thursday that will require election of members to the wheat promoting committee. Members now are appointed by the governor.

Shifting ed taxes to income stalled

United Press International

The Legislature Tuesday refused to advance a bill that would shift the support of public schools from the property tax to an adjusted gross income tax

Adams Sen George Burrows, sponsor of the measure, said he would bracket the bill until May 3 to allow his colleagues time to study the proposal The motion to give the bill first-round approval lost, 15-12

Although Burrows was unsuccessful in advancing the bill, he managed to gain support for several technical amendments One of the amendments would require each school district's board of education to report the total revenue it raised through taxation and other sources to the State Revenue Department by Aug 1 of each year

Burrows said passage of his bill, LB192, would make Neoraska "a progressive leader" in the nation The current system of taxing property to support schools is unfair because, among other things, it is inequitably assessed, he said

Under LB192, the average adjusted tax rate following the shift to property taxes would be about 3 1/2, Burrows said He called the rate "palatable" and said his bill would "give some real meaningful property tax relief "

Burrows explained that the tax for each school district would be based on the district s total income of the previous year The large population centers with high income would pay a smaller tax, Burrows said, adding he is willing to rework the measure to provide fair taxation for sparsely populated areas

' Our present (property) tax system is defunct, it's inadequate, Burrows said

' But Ralston Sen Gerald Koch, author of the bill before the lawmakers that hikes state aid to education said the courts would not uphold a law providing total property tax relief

Koch said the courts have ruled previously that all indicators of wealth — including property, sales, corporate and income taxes — must be used toward supporting public education

We cannot exempt property because it is an indiator of wealth, Koch said If Burrows bill is enacted Koch predicted someday the state s going to wake up and find out about LB192

Kearney Sen Ron Cope also opposed advancing the bill because he said it would impose an unfair burden on corporations Ultimately, he said, ' You re going to drive business out of Nebraska

' I think you re killing the golden goose ' with the bill, Cope said

Exon vetoes bill on enforcing law

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

Gov J James Exon vetoed a bill Tuesday, calling it "a flagrant attempt to supersede the Nebraska Constitution

The bill, LB45, was aimed at forcing state agencies to enforce laws even though the State Justice Department says those laws may be unconstitutional

The law authorized state officials to put a controversial bill into effect or initiate court action to test the law's validity 10 days after receiving an attorney general's opinion.

Exon said the attorney general's office had, ironically, advised state senators that LB45 was constitutionally suspect

The constitution governs the actions of the Legislature as well as the executive branch While the state s Supreme Court is the final arbiter, Exon said "that does mean the Legislature should do whatever it wishes until the court says no "

Lecturing the legislators, Exon said the Unicameral ' should pay attention to the constitution before legislation is passed as well as when the Supreme Court slaps the Unicameral s hands '

LB45, sponsored by Sen John Murphy of South Sioux City, is an outgrowth of Murphy s attempt last year to earmark money for the Ponca school system Exon charged

Murphy introduced legislation to appropriate $8,170 to the schools, an attempt Exon said would violate the constitution The Legislature was advised by the attorney general of the legal problems when Exon vetoed that law last year

Exon s veto was overridden

On the advice of the attorney general, the State Education Department refused to disburse the money to Ponca Sen Murphy introduced LB45 as a result

That bill has some practical problems as well as constitutional problems. Exon said, since in many cases the only way to test the proposed law is through a lawsuit brought against the state official who refuses to implement the law

' All in all,'' Exon concluded, "LB45 is ill conceived and an effort to out constitutional principles It should be quietly laid to rest

Food sales tax credit is not increased to $22

Associated Press

The Unicameral backtracked Tuesday and reconsidered some issues scheduled for final reading, including the food sales tax credit

But Blair Sen Walter George's attempt to amend the credit now $20 in LB30, to $22 failed He said $22 was a reasonable compromise between the conflicting parties, some of whom want the credit to be $24 The credit, for which every Nebraskan is eligible, is $16 this year

The arguments for and against raising the credit were much the same as in previous debate

Sen Ernest Chambers said the poor pay an inordinate proportion of their incomes for food and thus are taxed unfairly.

Sen Neil Simon of Omaha said State Labor Department statistics show that $24 is the average annual per capita food sales tax payment in Nebraska.

Sen Warren Swigart argued that the increase would trigger a sales and perhaps income tax increase Senators voted 21-22 not to return the bill to add George s amendment

Barnett says pardons should be supervised

Associated Press

A resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to allow the Legislature to regulate powers of the State Board of Pardons commute first-degree murder sentences was introduced Tuesday in the Unicameral

Lincoln Sen Wally Barnett introduced the resolution LR53

The Board of Pardons includes the governor, secretary of state and the attorney general Barnett said the only way he can support any prohibition of the death penalty and require a flat minimum term in prison is if the board's power to commute that sentence is subject to the Legislature

Barnett said he will be voting against any attempt to resurrect Omaha Sen Ernest Chambers' LB64, proposing abolition of the death penalty but killed Monday in the Unicameral, until the proposed constitutional amendment is enacted

He said the resolution may be handled like a legislative bill and if passed would put the issue to a vote of the people at the November 1978 general election

Nebraska near bottom of list for receiving research funds

Associated Press

Nebraska gets less federal money for research than all but five other states, according to a new study by the National Science Foundation

Ten states, led by California, get more than 70% of all such federal funds, the report said

Nebraska's $20 million share in fiscal 1975 ranks it 46th among the states and the District of Columbia, the report said, although Nebraska ranks 35th in population, 32nd in total personal income, and 30th in total federal taxes paid to help support the same research and development

Only states ranking below Nebraska in federal funding are Wyoming, North and South Dakota, Maine and Delaware.

Nebraska ranks 37th in the number of doctoral scientists and engineers, the study said

The state's ranking has hovered at about the same level since the 1960s, said Carl Leopold, graduate dean at the University of Nebraska NU gets the largest share, but not all, of the federal research and development funds listed Thirty-seven per cent of proposals from NU are funded, he said, lower than in many states

State legislators have urged that NU go after more federal funding Leopold thinks the university is making progress, but relative positions are hard to change Nebraska got $7 7 million total in 1965 and $14 7 million in 1974.

Lincoln campus Chancellor Roy Young has said he wants to triple Nebraska's outside research funding during the next few years He will soon name a new vice chancellor to aid would-be researchers on the UNL faculty

Reaction to energy plan liked

The Federal Energy Administration, which has hit the road to plug President Carter's energy plan, brought a question and answer man to Lincoln Tuesday

William Smith, FEA spokesman, told a news conference that he preceives a favorable reaction from travelling in the Midwest Most people even thought the plan would have been more severe, he said

Smith rebutted charges by members of Nebraska's congressional delegation that the plan, which includes increased gasoline taxes, would be unfair to rural residents who must drive greater distances

"People who must use their cars will buy cars with better mileage," Smith said The savings on gasoline would help those who travel great distances to work or for personal needs, he said

Carter has asked the public to sacrifice, but not to drastically alter its standard of living, Smith said. European nations maintain high standards of living while using far less energy, he noted

Taxes on gasoline used in crop production would be rebated just as they are now, Smith said Other incentives have been proposed for the conservation of other uses of energy

Smith pointed out that people who want to drive "gas guzzlers" would still have that choice, but it would be an expensive choice By 1985 the tax on a new car which gets less than 12½ miles per gallon would be $2,388 under Carter's plan The rebate for a car which gets 40 miles per gallon would be $493

The whys and wherefores of the plan will be submitted to Congress next week, Smith said

Lincoln Journal and Star
POLICY STATEMENT
Regarding Publication of Political Advertising

Political advertisements are construed to be any copy containing assertions subject to public controversy or advocating a candidacy, whether or not a public election is involved.

Political advertising must carry a disclaimer showing the name of the candidate or the sponsoring group, and the name and address of two or more persons officiating for the group.

All political advertisements are payable in advance of publication at the time copy is submitted Charges are figured at the cash rate shown on the current advertising rate card.

Political advertisements are subject to all conditions set forth on the current advertising rate card, e.g. proofs, responsibility for errors and position. The Lincoln Journal & Star reserves the right to refuse to publish any advertising it deems libelous.

Nearing a public election, no advertisement introducing a new controversial subject, or, for the first time, attacking the position, past record or qualifications of an opposing candidate or issue will be accepted for publication later than the Thursday before Election Day.

If a political advertisement has appeared in our editions prior to or on the Thursday before Election Day, it will be acceptable for publication in identical form up to and including Election Day.

If any new statement should be introduced in our advertising columns on the Thursday before Election Day which does introduce a new, controversial subject or for the first time attacks the position, past record or qualifications of an opposing candidate or issue, this newspaper may, at it's discretion, make allowance under this rule for the opposing side to answer within the deadlines set forth below.

ADS TO RUN ON:	COPY MUST BE IN BY:
Saturday	12 noon, Friday
Sunday	4 p.m., Friday
Monday	12 noon, Saturday
Tuesday	12 noon, Saturday

Controversial statements of quotes which have appeared at any time in our editorial or news columns may not be used in political advertising after the Thursday before Election Day unless such statements have appeared in political advertising in identical form prior to the Thursday before Election Day.

It is the intention of the Lincoln Journal and Star to avoid the unfair practice of allowing publication of "last minute" assertions in political advertising which cannot, because of time limitations, be answered by the opposition It is our intent to be impartial and fair to all in establishing these procedures to be used in the handling of political advertising: it is with this spirit that these rules have been adopted.

70% of drinkers could benefit from help

Omaha (AP) — Seventy per cent of all problem drinkers could control their problem if they had a good relationship with someone who could "help them help themselves," an authority on liver diseases said.

Such a relationship might be with a physician, church or Alcoholics Anonymous, said Dr. Carroll Leevy of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey at Newark.

Leevy said there have been no solutions from treatment that allows problem drinkers to "drink a little," in detailed psychological analysis, or through use of chemicals that make patients sick when they drink alcohol.

Leevy shows patients and their families laboratory evidence of liver disease, in hopes it will encourage the patients to stop drinking.

He said it is possible to predict which drinker will go on to develop cirrhosis of the liver.

Motel ends dirty films run

Omaha (AP) — A bankruptcy filing has ended this city's only motel with dirty movies

The manager of the San Antonio Inn, Johnny Webb said the x-rated demise was triggered by the bankruptcy of the parent company, Southwestern Motels, Inc , of Houston, although the films brought in "above average business" to the motel

Webb said Southwestern Motels filed for bankruptcy in Houston April 8 He said company's troubles stemmed from "poor management "

He said the holders of the mortgage, whom he declined to identify, have taken over the operation through a trustee. He said the mortgage holders are not connected with Southwestern

Webb said the motel is now in a "transitional period and that the adult movie supply was shut off when Southwestern declared bankruptcy

I don t know how the new operators feel about the movies but I believe they won't like them They are completely different from the former operators I don't like the movies either

The motel now is showing non-X-rated films cabled into each room and viewed on the television sets, Webb said

Vet status keeps ASCS head in job

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

Washington — Republican-appointed Paul Sindt, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), has a chance to remain in office, at least temporarily, under the Carter administration

Sindt s status as a World War II Navy veteran apparently carries enough weight to enable him to survive the general dismissal of the heads of the state ASCS and the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA)

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland told members of the Newspaper Farm Editors Assn Monday that he had dismissed all ASCS state executive directors and FmHA officials who were not veterans

Bergland said he will appeal a Civil Service Commission ruling that prevents him from firing state executive directors who are veterans They were appointed to their offices during the administrations of Presidents Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon

Bergland said he feels that all government employes above the level of GS-15 should be appointed, rather than being under the Civil Service, so that an incoming administration can have better control over its budget and new programs

Nebraska Democrats had expected to see either State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreusher or Harold Rademacher, an ASCS career employe currently serving as acting state committee for ASCS, appointed to Sindt's job

The names of three Nebraskans recommended for committee assignments have been sent from the U.S Department of Agriculture to the White House for President Jimmy Carter s action

The three will be chosen from a list of six nominees recommended by Nebraska Democrats They are Irv Friehe of McCook, Robert Rauner of Sidney, Dale Sampson Jr of Utica, Mike Eason of North Bend, Ralph Lubeck of Stamford and Ralph O Connor of Grafton

Escapee is still sought

Osceola — Polk County Sheriff Ron Fink said late Tuesday the search continues for an escapee from the Polk County jail

An Oklahoma man, Maurice Logue, 27, fled from custody late Sunday night while officers were admitting other prisoners, Sheriff Fink explained

He said Logue was being held in Osceola for York County authorities to face charges including escape from custody and auto theft

Logue was returned to Nebraska from Oklahoma, where he was serving a 25-year prison sentence, the sheriff added

Dead prisoner sought mental help, says mother

Omaha (AP) — A prisoner who apparently killed himself with a police officer's revolver Monday had been refused psychiatric treatment at an Omaha hospital, the victim s mother said

Ted Lewis, 21, of Omaha, was refused admittance to Richard Young Memorial Hospital over the weekend after being taken there by his parents, according to his mother, Mrs Donald Lewis

He asked for help He begged for help," said Mrs. Lewis

Informed of Mrs Lewis remarks, Richard Young Administrator Sandy Carson said she would check to see what actions were taken in regard for the request for admission.

Lewis had twice undergone treatment in the past at Nebraska Psychiatric Institute, his mother said

York judge sets hearing on request for transfer

York (UPI) — York County Judge Robert Cattle Tuesday ordered a hearing May 5 on a motion to have the first-degree murder case of Ricky A. Johnson, 17, transferred to juvenile court.

Johnson is accused in the Friday night shooting death of Patrolman James M. Richardson II.

At a hearing Tuesday morning, Cattle denied a motion by Johnson's court-appointed attorney, John Brogan, to have his client released on bond.

In making the bond motion, Brogan said Johnson's transfer to the jail in Aurora made it difficult for him to see his client. Johnson was transferred to the Aurora jail because it has better facilities for juveniles.

Brogan also said he needed until next week to prepare for the motion to transfer the case to juvenile court. Deputy County Attorney Vince Valentine argued against the motion, suggesting that the issue of where the case should be heard could be settled at the preliminary hearing originally scheduled Thursday.

Cattle agreed to Brogan's request for a delay, and the preliminary hearing was postponed until after a decision is made on the motion to hear the case in juvenile court.

Cattle also issued a statement saying he "would not be influenced" by the kind of clothes the deceased was wearing," referring to Richardson's police uniform.

Cattle said the important element in the case was that a human life had been taken, not that an officer had been killed in the line of duty.

Richardson, 24, died when he was struck in the chest by a shot believed fired from a .22-caliber rifle, he was responding to a report of shots being fired in a family dispute when he was killed.

Johnson was arrested about an hour after the shooting.

Shootout charges filed

Ogallala (UPI) — John Navarro, 28, a former Ogallala resident who recently moved to Fort Morgan, Colo., was charged Tuesday with two counts of shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim in the Saturday shooting of a man in an Ogallala tavern.

Navarro is accused of shooting Richard Reyna, 23, of Ogallala, at least four times in what Ogallala Police Chief Alvin Hickox described as a "feud."

The second charge was filed for a shootout with bar owner John Gendreau which followed the wounding of Reyna. Gendreau and the suspect exchanged several shots before police arrived and persuaded Navarro to surrender. Both men escaped injury.

Navarro's wife, Nancy, 26, was charged with aiding and abetting in the wounding of Reyna. Under Nebraska law, the aiding and abetting charge carries the same sentence as the principle crime, Keith County Attorney Pat Hays said.

Bond was set at $50,000 for Navarro and $5,000 for Mrs. Navarro, with a provision allowing them to post only 10% of the bond to be released.

The couple was returned to jail and asked for a court-appointed attorney. Both were to appear May 9 for a preliminary hearing.

Except for one shot in the stomach, most of Reyna's wounds were superficial, and he was in satisfactory condition, Hays said.

Iowans look at Hastings gun

Newton, Iowa (AP) — Iowa authorities were in Hastings, Neb., Tuesday trying to connect a gun used there in a shootout with the weapon that killed a Florida man.

The body of Don Kozar, 27, was found early Monday in a van parked at the Newton High School. The Jasper County medical examiner, Dr. Fred Carpenter, said Kozar had one bullet wound in the head. Carpenter said he had apparently been shot several days ago at some other location and the body dumped at Newton.

Florida authorities said Kozar was in the process of moving from Columbus, Ohio, to Casselbury, Fla. — a suburb of Orlando.

Newton Police Chief Jim Greve and Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation agents went to Hastings Monday night to check on the weapon used by Andrew Patsios, 18, in a shootout.

Hastings authorities said Patsios was stopped in a bank while allegedly trying to forge a check. Patsios was shot once in the neck after he had shot a police officer three times.

Patsios was transferred Tuesday to an Omaha hospital where he was listed in critical condition.

Brother won't press charges

Hastings (UPI) — A Lincoln man stabbed in front of a Hastings motel, Monday night apparently doesn't want charges filed against his brother, Adams County Attorney Art Toogood said Tuesday.

Toogood said a charge of possession of marijuana would probably be filed against Russell Basler, 29, of Lincoln, who police said stabbed his brother in front of the Hastings Holiday Inn.

But the victim, William Basler, 23, also of Lincoln, doesn't want to press charges in connection with the stabbing, Toogood said.

Police said they found about 2½ ounces of marijuana in the van in which the brothers were travelling.

The younger Basler was reported in satisfactory condition at a Hastings hospital. He suffered a cut about two inches wide and three inches deep in the abdomen, Police Chief Melvin Hall said.

The stabbing apparently resulted from an argument between the two men over where they would spend the night, Hall said.

Many cultures seen in Malone art show

Art is Art. That's what coordinators of the Malone Community Center's Arts and Crafts Show have decided.

The program is scheduled for 3:30 to 7 p.m. Thursday with about 25 multicultural artists expected to show their wares.

The program began with planners looking for an all-black artist presentation.

"We started looking for black artists, but we found so many different cultural artists locally who were talented we decided to shift the emphasis," said Lloyd Moore, a scientific glass blower for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln who's searching for the participants in the show.

"I found so many fantastic ethnic art pieces in Richards Hall, (a UNL art studio) I changed my mind and decided to make the emphasis multicultural," Moore said.

Artists will be showing examples of black, Mexican-American, Native American, and European influence, as well as giving demonstrations on how their art is done.

Eight artists will be sending work from the state penitentiary, and seven will be coming from Omaha.

The program originated with Malone Center social worker Cheryl Neely who hopes to make it an annual event.

IOOF gets OK to sell lodge, land

York (AP) — A District Court judge denied a request to halt the sale of the International Order of Odd Fellows' home in York.

Judge Howard Kanouff dismissed the suit for a temporary injunction brought by Benjamin J. Foos of Grand Island.

Foos wanted to stop the sale of the home and 125 surrounding acres by the IOOF Grand Lodge of Nebraska.

The Grand Lodge voted last October to sell the home.

No prospective purchaser has been announced.

The judge said Foos had not proved the sale would violate state law or the IOOF constitution or bylaws.

Grand Island seeks 3 grants for airport work

Grand Island (UPI) — The Hall County Airport Authority Board has voted to apply for three federal grants.

At a meeting Monday night, Roger Burdick, airport manager, said one application is for funds to light a secondary runway.

A second grant would be used to lengthen by 1,000 feet the 7,000-foot main runway. The Airport Authority has been trying to purchase land from the City of Grand Island for the expansion.

The third application is for a planning grant to study possible expansion of the terminal building.

Officials said the planned improvements were based on an assumption the Civil Aeronautics Board will rule favorably on Frontier Airlines' application to designate the airport as regional.

The application would show federal officials the authority is serious about improving Grand Island Airport facilities, one authority member said.

Carter Lake fuel spill leads mayor to ask fine

Carter Lake, Iowa (AP) — "This body of water is too valuable to let someone mess it up like this," Carter Lake Mayor Gerald Waltrip said Monday, adding that he will "push and push until someone is fined" for dumping jet fuel in Carter Lake.

Waltrip said he will ask deferal, state, local and airlines officials to meet soon to find ways "to guarantee it won't happen again."

A fuel spill noticed 11 days ago killed some fish and contaminated portions of the north and east shoreline of the lake. Fishermen fear it damaged the fish spawning habitat, Waltrip said. Much of the damage has been cleaned up, he said.

The cause apparently is a flaw in United Airlines fuel storage operations at nearby Eppley Field in Omaha and as much as 6,500 gallons may have gone into the lake, officials said Monday.

Waltrip said the concern which has arisen since the spill shows Omaha area residents are beginning to realize the lake is an asset in a region short of public lakes.

"I won't call this a spill. It's just a plain idiotic, asinine situation that anyone would dump five gallons of oil in a recreational lake, much less this much," the mayor said.

He praised the Omaha Airport Authority for tracking down the source of the spill and directing the cleanup.

Authority Executive Director Ronald Grear said United's inventory shows it is 10,000 gallons short. "We intercepted and hauled to a disposal site about 3,500 gallons, so 6,500 gallons could have gone into the lake," Grear said.

Grear said he favored Waltrip's call for a meeting because the authority and the airlines want a "more nearly failsafe system" to prevent future spills.

United Operations Manager J. B. Hutchinson said it appears a malfunction in a valve caused the fuel United receives from a pipeline to overflow its underground storage tanks and go into the lake.

United has two 20,000 gallon tanks and each will be inspected this week to pinpoint the cause, he said. A leak could be responsible, but the evidence points to an overflow, he added.

"We will cooperate in every way in the cleanup," Hutchinson said. I'm pleased with the progress taking place."

United has brought in a consulting engineer to help with the work.

Officials said workmen are scraping the top few feet of soil from the affected shoreline and hauling it to a landfill. Workers also are removing the oilsoaked dirt and vegetation, plus debris, along the shore.

Quarantine efforts increase in wake of swine disease

Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon and State Agriculture Department officials announced Tuesday that a swine disease known as "pseudorabies," has hit 14 Nebraska counties, prompting increased quarantine efforts and a $168,815 funding request of the Legislature.

The funding for the next fiscal year would be to expand testing facilities at the University of Nebraska Livestock Diagnostic Laboratory in Lincoln.

Exon, in a news conference held with State Veterinarian Norman Kruse, Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher, and Dr. Earl Dickinson of the NU Veterinary Science Department, said the disease is transmittable to cattle and sheep as well as hogs.

The officials said tests indicate potential problems in 44 Nebraska counties and listed the following 14 in which the disease had been confirmed in swine:

Adams, Burt, Colfax, Cuming, Dodge, Gage, Johnson, Lancaster, Madison, Nance, Nuckolls, Platte, Douglas, and Nemaha.

Kruse and Dickinson said swine imports have a 30-day quarantine on feeder pigs and the quarantine program also is underway for Nebraska swine.

Exon said the disease problem "has crept up on us rather rapidly."

"We're hopeful that if we move on this quickly it will not spread," said Dickinson.

Exon said the university has sufficient funds to begin upgrading the required veterinary testing facilities until July 1, when he hopes the additional funding sought from the Legislature.

Plans are to triple the facility's capacity to 5,000 tests a month.

NPPD may file suit over nuclear plant

Omaha (AP) — Action may be taken Thursday or Friday on whether Nebraska Public Power District will use Omaha Public Power District for canceling construction of a nuclear power plant, NDDP spokesman Ron Bogus said.

The NPPD board voted Feb. 25 to adopt a resolution demanding that OPPD fulfill its obligations on construction of Fort Calhoun nuclear power plant unit No. 2.

The NPPD board gave OPPD 60 days to respond or be in default of the construction contract.

The NPPD board meets Thursday and Friday.

Bogus said NPPD never has officially recognized cancellation of the plant because, "We have never received official notification."

1 teacher fired, second suspended in conduct case

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

One Lincoln Northeast High School teacher was fired, and another suspended, by the Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday night

The action followed a public hearing one week ago in which the pair, Vern Burling and Gerald Taucreti, were charged with insubordination, neglect of duty, and unprofessional conduct, in an incident at the school March 9 The board decided to fire Taucreti and suspend Burling for the rest of the year, without pay

Charges stemmed from parent-teacher conferences at the school, when officials said the pair left the building 45 minutes early, falsified the master schedule sheet for the conferences, and withheld information about the incident from principal Harold Dietrich

In addition, Taucreti was charged with using profane, abusive and threatening language in a discussion with a fellow teacher about the parent night activity

The records involved were on a large piece of poster board, kept on a secretary's desk in the school office Names of parents are filled in by the teachers for the times they will meet. Taucreti said he filled in some fictitious names to keep time open for the pair, who team teach several classes, to talk with parents of problem students.

Both said they withheld some information on the matter from Dietrich, who finally investigated and filed formal complaints with the personnel department of the central administration Three other teachers who left the building early were reprimanded by the principal, but the Burling-Taucreti case was the subject of an April 19 public hearing

Mark McGuire, attorney for the pair, filed a statement of acceptable alternate punishment with the board Tuesday night That alternative suggested suspension for both teachers.

Following a 30-minute closed session the board voted 6-0 to terminate Taucreti's contract at the end of the school year, June 6 By a vote of 4-2, the board voted to suspend Burling, effective Wednesday, without pay for the rest of the year, and place a copy of an official reprimand in his permanent file Board members Ted Dewey and Pearl Goldenstein voted against the suspension and issued a minority opinion indicating they favored firing Burling, too

Burling has been a Lincoln teacher for 16 years, five of them at Northeast Taucreti has been a teacher for five years, all at Northeast

West Lincolnites favor scaled-down area park

The West Lincoln Neighborhood Association voted unanimously Tuesday night in favor of building a 2 2-acre park near 1st and Dawes

Association President William R Smith said the proposal now will be taken to the parks department

"The parks department is not overly enthused about this small a park, Smith said "But eight acres is going to cost you a half million dollars because homes would have to be condemned and destroyed

The tract of land proposed for the park is vacant, and was purchased by the city two years ago with federal funds earmarked for a west Lincoln park, Smith said

Approximately $120,000 is left over from those funds for development of the park, he said

Minimum skills tests said an option for Lincoln schools

Associate Superintendent Ron Brandt has asked the Lincoln Board of Education to explore the possibility of establishing some form of minimum competency testing for high school graduates

Brandt made the request during presentation of a senior high study report at the board's regular meeting Tuesday night He asked for a special board work session, May 3, devoted to the issues involved

Minimum competency testing used in about 29 states, Brandt told the board, and "We should at least review our goal statement, and, perhaps define some things what is basic education, and what is competency"

Competency tests could be administered to high school seniors before they graduate, and te results could be used to identify skills which need more work, Brandt explained

Teachers could advise students of their performance and suggest courses to take to improve those problem areas, he added

In other action, the board decided not to do their own dirty laundry

Associate Superintendent Bob Den Hartog had advised the board that the schools could save money by doing their own laundry (mainly towels and mops) rather than contracting the service to a professional laundry But board members Stan Linnertz and Lou Roper objected to what they called "encroachment on private enterprise."

In addition, Roper asked for more information and some alternatives to the current laundry procedure He suggested the schools pick up the professionally laundered items and distribute them themselves Only board members Pearl Goldenstein and Lu Pansing voted in favor of the in-school laundry proposal

Superintendent John Prasch told the board that he isn't ready to recommend any action on requests for temporary buildings to ease overcrowding at Zeman Elementary, 4900 S 52nd, until at least next year

The school district doesn't have building funds right now, Prasch explained, and enrollment projections indicate that next year might be the peak He added "We should expect the problem (overcrowding) to pass after that"

Dean Kuhns
. . was Park principal.

Prescott post to Kuhns

Dean W Kuhns, 48, has been named principal of Prescott Elementary School, 1930 S 20th, effective this fall

Kuhns, with the Lincoln Public Schools since 1960, is currently principal at Park School, a post he's held for eight years Prior to that time he was principal at Norwood Park and assistant principal at Dawes elementary

The Shickley native, a graduate of Goshen College in Indiana and the University of Nebraska, also taught in Hebron He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, the Lincoln Education Association, the Nebraska State Education Association, the National Education Association and the National Association of Elementary School Principals

He replaces Jack Ernst, who asked to return to a classroom teaching assignment

120 sheets plywood missing from 2 sites

Thieves took 120 sheets of plywood, valued at $1,000, from building sites at 1421 and 1431 D St, police said

The half-inch, four-by-eight-foot sheets were taken from the rear of the sites Tuesday morning or Monday night, Daniel H Merritt, 2525 Calvert St, told police

School board not completely enticed

Board member Ted Dewey said that sounded like a good idea, but added he'd prefer to attend some of the 'against-ums" too

YMCA officials hear Indian advice on programs for youth

By Joe Hudson
Star Staff Writer

National and local YMCA officials agreed Tuesday night to seek advice from Lincoln-area American Indians in revising the Y's Indian Guides, Princesses and Maidens programs

The programs, which stress parent-child fellowship, have been criticized by some local Indians for more than three years.

Local Indian leaders, parents involved in the programs, and local and national YMCA officials met for the first time at the Indian Center, 243 S 20th, for about two hours.

Officials agreed with many Indian claims that the programs, which include forming tribes, wearing feathers, and taking Indian names offend the contemporary Indian and his religious heritage

At least half a dozen Indians told how smoking of the peace pipe and reciting of Indian prayers by grade-school aged whites was deeply offensive

Communication between man and his god "is a lot more than play" said Paul Olson of the Lincoln Fellowship of Churches

Indian suggestions Tuesday night ranged from involving more Indians in forming program policies to ditching the practice of studying Indians altogether

Those in favor of abandoning the Indian motif charged it is impossible to properly teach the Indian heritage without devoting more time than most parents are willing to give

"Why not teach about the American cowboy, or teach about astronauts," one local Indian asked "That would work better for you"

John Parker, head of a YMCA Indian consulting team, and Charles Kujawa, who wrote the manuals for the programs, stopped short of giving serious consideration to dumping the Indian theme on the national level

Instead, they suggested that Indians and local YMCA leaders work together to eliminate offensive parts of the programs

Parker also invited local Indians to help the Indian consulting team make revision in the manual on a national level

Included in that would be revision of the much-maligned Indian Princess manual, which is due for revision in the next three or four years The manuals serve as a guide for the half-million parents and children in the three programs nationwide.

Fathers representing the local Y-Princess parent-child federation said they had not been aware that the program offended Indians until recently

"Now that we are aware of it," one father said, "we will do something about it"

When it was suggested that the only way to avoid insulting Indians was to drop the Indian motif altogether, one father threw up his hands and said, "That's fine by me"

School bond issue rejected

North Platte (AP) — Voters turned down a $297,000 school bond issue here Tuesday by a vote of 154-165.

The bond issue would have added 10,000 square feet to the rural Osgood District 127 school outside the North Platte city limits.

There were no absentee ballots cast A similar issue failed in 1975.

(c) New York Times

Houston — Instead of the "moral equivalent of war," the nation faces what regional officials are calling "the economic equivalent of civil war" over President Carter's energy proposals.

The President's energy message to Congress last Wednesday set off a barrage of criticism and regional name-calling, with state officials in several parts of the country promising a flurry of legislation and lawsuits to protect local interest from "outside" exploitation.

In the Northeast, politicians vowed to protect consumers from "rip-offs" by the oil industry. In Western coal-producing states, legislators promise to protect land, air and water from the ravages of strip mining, electrical generating plants, and coal slurry pipelines. And in the Southwest, state officials pledged everything short of secession from the Union to save oil and natural gas supplies for the region's growing industrial base.

"In a sense, we seem to be in the very early stages of a form of economic civil war over energy," said Tom W. Sigler, a senior vice president of Continental Oil Co. "This situation demands mutual understanding and compromise, not confrontation."

So far, however, compromise is rare in regional rhetoric.

In Texas, Gov. Dolph Briscoe opened the verbal bombardment of Washington, saying the Carter energy program "is aimed like a cocked gun at Texas." Rep. Robert Krueger, D-Tex., said plans to control intrastate natural gas prices amounted to "economic colonialism" in which the northeast, through Washington, was seeking to strip Texas of gas supplies badly needed locally.

Ray Hutchison, chairman of the Texas Republican Party, chided state Democrats for supporting Carter, saying he "sold out the people of Texas."

Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, Gov. David Boren of Oklahoma and Briscoe have long argued that their states were already paying a high price, depleting their oil and gas reserves and taking environmental risks, to supply the nation's energy needs.

To supply local needs, free-market pricing structures were established for intrastate natural gas and for several years, as a result, consumers in these states have had to pay premium prices to insure adequate supplies. The Carter proposals would now take away that insurance.

Edwards says the President's proposals will aid what he calls a systematic drain of the Southwest's oil and natural gas, at very low prices, by Northern states. He has vowed to slow down his state's production by lowering state-approved production rates, and slowing down future lease sales.

Briscoe says Texas will also be hit hard by the President's energy taxing proposals. When they are fully implemented, he says, federal taxation will siphon off some $6.6 billion from Texas producers and consumers. Noting that Texas is both the largest energy-producing state and the largest energy-consuming state in the nation, he says the Texas tax burden would amount to one-fourth of total national revenues from energy taxes.

The President's package is expected to bolster efforts in Western coal-producing states to legislate higher severance taxes on minerals and energy exported to other parts of the nation. Governors like Richard Lamm of Colorado argue that consuming states such as California should be forced to pay his state for the privilege of allowing coal to be burned there and then the energy shipped in the form of clean electricity to places like Los Angeles.

For energy companies, like Sigler's, regional chauvinism has slowed down development plans, making shortages worse.

"In the Northeast, states such as New York and Ohio still have refused to allow exploration for natural gas in the Great Lakes, though Canada has been producing gas from its side of the lakes for many years without any problems," he said.

He also cited the delay of East Coast offshore development, caused by environmental lawsuits and government red tape as hampering national production efforts.

The fact remains that the Northeast has been buying natural gas at less than replacement costs while at the same time they have erected environmental and other barriers preventing development of their energy resources, Sigler said.

Sending coal to Texas in pipe opposed

Washington (AP) — American railroaders and a Wyoming congressman concerned about water voiced opposition Tuesday to a bill that would speed construction of a coal slurry pipeline into Texas.

The bill would grant Houston Natural Gas Corp., among others, the power to take land through condemnation for a pipeline that would carry coal from Wyoming and Colorado to Texas electric utilities. It is sponsored by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex.

The gas company estimates that it would save Texas consumers billions of dollars over the next 40 years, during which Texas utilities will have to switch from natural gas to coal.

Opposing the pipelines is the railroad industry, which would like to keep the coal-carrying business to itself. The railroads refuse to grant the pipeline builders rights-of-way under their tracks.

Several states, including Texas, have passed laws allowing coal pipelines the power of eminent domain. The pipeline interests say they need a federal law so they can begin soon to build the pipelines they will need to handle the anticipated upsurge in Western coal production.

Tuesday, railroad spokesman William H. Dempsey protested to House subcommittee that the coal pipelines would skim the "cream" of the coal hauling business from the railroads: the large volume, single destination customer. The railroads would be left with the less profitable trade, he said.

Another railroad spokesman was Louis Menk, chairman of the Burlington Northern.

"A number of railroads in this country with lighter-density traffic volumes face financial ruin and government takeover unless they increase their freight business. Coal offers our industry its best hope," Menk said.

Menk also contended that the slurry pipelines were unneeded. "Railroads alone can provide all the transportation for our coal."

Dempsey also opposed the pipelines for environmental reasons, particularly the amount of the water they use.

A slurry pipeline moves pulverized coal, mixed with an equal amount of water. One slurry pipeline would use 20,000 acre-feet of water annually, testimony Tuesday indicated.

Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., said he was not about to vote for a bill that would cause that much water to flow out of his parched state. "I can't water my lawn in Cheyenne, and you want to slurry it out of the state to move coal," he said to the pipeline representative, Pat Jennings.

Jennings, in response to questions, said the pipeline interests did not want to build a dual pipeline that would recycle drinking and irrigation water it used.

Roncalio said he would oppose the legislation unless it had that requirement, but he said he would be agreeable to an amendment that would allow construction of the Houston Gas pipeline, since it would start in Colorado and not affect Wyoming.

Senator says if Carter dislikes changes, 'so be it'

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said his Governmental Affairs Committee will consider proposals to weaken the power of President Carter's top energy official whether Carter likes it or not — and if he doesn't like it, "so be it."

Ribicoff, the panel chairman, postponed for at least a week a vote on the proposals to dilute the price-setting powers which White House energy chief James R. Schlesinger could exercise as head of a planned new Energy Department. Those proposals have reportedly angered Carter.

The comments by Ribicoff, however, indicated congressional Democrats have no intention of bowing to presidential pressure to adopt unchanged his energy policies and their call for higher prices.

Ribicoff said he was postponing a vote on a committee staff plan affecting the proposed Energy department in order to give senators more time to study proposed amendments.

But at the same time, he told committee members it is "not incumbent" on Congress to accept whatever energy policy proposals the President might send to Congress.

"I'm sure there are things here that the administration is unhappy with," Ribicoff said. "So be it."

Dow Ind. +1.02

New York (AP) — The stock market turned in a mixed showing Tuesday after an early advance subsided

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 5 points during the morning, closed with a 1 02 gain at 915 62

But Dow Jones' transportation and utility averages both declined, and losers outnumbered gainers by a 6-5 margin in the over-all tally on the New York Stock Exchange

The Dow had fallen nearly 28 points in the past three trading days Monday s 12 47-point drop had left the average at a 15-month closing low

Analysts said the depressed prices of many stocks attracted some cautious buying at the outset Tuesday

But they noted that the advance stirred up little support in the face of inflation fears and continuing uncertainty over last week's energy proposals from President Carter

Brokers also pointed to speculation that the Federal Reserve might be leaning toward a tightening of its credit policy because of increased growth of the money supply recently

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials eked out a 03 gain to 107 57, but S&P's 500-stock composite index slipped 04 to 97 11

The biggest trade of the day was a $14 85 million block of 550,000 American Home Products shares at 27 The stock stood at 27, down ¼, as of the 4 p m close of the NYSE

Continental Oil, also active, gave up ⅞ to 35⅛ The company reported first quarter earnings of 95 cents a share, down from $1 40 in the like period a year ago

Getty Oil, by contrast, rose 2¼ to 181½ On Monday the company posted a 42 per cent earnings increase for the quarter

The NYSE's composite index slipped 04 to 52 96, a new low for the year

Chicago (AP) — Old crop soybean and meal futures fell to permissible limits on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday for the second straight session

The loss in soybeans amounted to 50 cents a bushel and in meal $10 a ton Soybean oil futures closed with a loss of 75 points, or ¾ cent a pound

Wheat corn and oats futures traded on the low side through most of the session but closed 1 ¼ to 2¼ cents a bushel higher under late, new buying and short covering

There were far more sellers in the soybean complex on the opening than buyers Meal futures dipped $9 a ton and soybeans 29 cents within a few minutes after the opening bell but new buying then tended to instill some strength Oil futures then turned above previous closes but no more additional demand developed in meal and beans It appeared then that longs took profits and new speculative selling set in

Virgil Parker Sports Editor

Wish you could have been along! Two of the top racquetball pros in the country, who appeared in an exhibition at the Sports Courts Monday night and who conducted a clinic there last night, were in town

Sports Courts boss Dick Kincaide hosted lunch. Some of his partners came along — and that meant ex-Nebraska pro football players John Dutton and Tom Ruud Though they can hold their own in any situation — physically or verbally — they brought along a little backup help in Steve Manstedt

Dutton, who was chosen for the pro bowl game the past two years, is a mainstay in the defensive front four for the Baltimore Colts, Ruud is a frontline linebacker for Buffalo, while Manstedt played the same position for the Washington Redskins before being injured in the fourth exhibition game last year at Kansas City. He s healthy again and set to return to George Allen s club

The conversation ranged over a wide variety of subjects. If I can decipher the scribbled notes off the place mat, I thought you might enjoy it too

For starters, there was the business of ordering lunch Dutton, at 6-8 and 275 pounds, had a cheeseburger and ice tea No dessert

Charlie Brumfield, who as one of the top racquetball players in the country has to be quick and agile, is 6-0 and 185 He ordered — and ate — a large bowl of soup, a platter of sliced turkey, a fruit salad with sherbert, FOUR hard-boiled eggs and strawberry shortcake for dessert

Changes in the game

Brumfield says racquetball is the fastest growing sport in the nation "The equipment company I represent is selling 75,000 racquets a month, ' the San Diego pro reveals "But, even more amazing, is the fact that 90% of the people in the country have still never heard of the game '

Brumfield says racquetball is going through some growing pains The game is dominated now by the serve — which whizzes at blinding speed

"Marty Hogan, who is No 1 right now," Brumfield explains. "has had his serve timed by one of those radar guns they use on baseball pitchers His serve has been clocked at 142 miles per hour With the use of a faster ball and glass courts — where for a split second you can lose sight of the ball — the finesse player who relies on shot placement is at a disadvantage

Brumfield says the allowance of a second serve is what causes the problem "There's no way to return a 142-MPH serve that is two inches off the ground But, if only one serve were allowed a player wouldn t dare risk losing the serve and would have to slow down his first chance to make sure it stayed in play

That would result in more volleying, which is what the fan enjoys watching

Basketball made changes

Brumfield says basketball went through the same thing Ten years ago, centers like Wilt Chamberlain were scoring 50 points a game. The rules were changed to outlaw offensive and defensive goaltending. The lane was widened Now the top scorers in the NBA are forwards and guards

Similar changes are needed in his game, Brumfield says There are no soft shots. It s all blast You've got to flail at the ball or its gone by you "

Brumfield quizzed Dutton, Ruud and Manstedt on the conditioning requirements of a pro football player

"You just can't make it anymore without being in top shape, ' Dutton insists "We work out every day — running, lifting weights

"At our rookie camp last year, they dropped like flies from heat exhaustion When we (the veterans) reported, there weren t any such problems. You soon learn you have to be in top shape to survive "

If you want to watch Dutton and the Colts in action this season, the chances are very good

We play at Kansas City and Denver during the regular season," Dutton says, "and again at Denver during the exhibition season "

In the off season, Dutton enjoys playing racquetball, too. Don't expect to see a Brumfield-Dutton match, however If Dutton raced for a crosscourt shot, Charlie says he might wind up a blob on the wall

He doesn t want to end a promising career that way.

Driessen homers propel Reds, 9-1

United Press International

Dan Driessen drove in six runs Tuesday night with a pair of homers and a single to pace the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves behind the combined three-hit pitching of Fred Norman and Rawly Eastwick.

Driessen hit a two-run homer in the third inning, singled home a run in the fifth and then hit a three-run homer in the ninth to enable the Reds to continue a rampage begun Monday night when Cincinnati's 23 runs was the highest total for a National League team in 20 years.

The Braves got their final hit and only run with two out in the third when Willie Montanez hit his fourth homer.

Norman, 1-1, came out after six innings because a muscle stiffened in his back and Eastwick had little trouble mopping up Johnny Bench got the Reds started with a two-run homer in the second and Cincinnati scored its other run in the sixth when Pete Rose tripled and scored on a single by Dave Concepcion

Rick Reuschel scattered six hits and Manny Trillo and George Mitterwald each drove in a pair of runs Tuesday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 4-1 triumph over the St Louis Cardinals.

It was the third straight victory for the Cubs and the third consecutive loss for the Cardinals

The Cubs scored three runs in the fourth inning on three hits and two walks Bill Buckner started the rally by beating out an infield single and Bobby Murcer walked Buckner advanced on Jerry Morales' outfield fly and scored on Trillo's single Steve Ontiveros was walked intentionally to fill the bases, but Mitterwald singled to center to score Murcer and Trillo

In the fourth Jose Cardenal singled, reached third on Murcer s double and scored when losing pitcher Eric Rasmussen, after walking Morales intentionally, also walked Trillo to force in a run

Bill Robinson s three-run double and Frank Taveras' two-run-triple accounted for all Pittsburgh's scoring Tuesday night while John Candelaria and Rick Gossage combined on a three-hitter to lead the Pirates to a 5 0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies

Candelaria gave up all three hits, walked two and struck out five over seven innings in picking up his second triumph is as many starts Gossage blanked Philadelphia the rest of the way to earn his second save

Rovinson clouted a bases-loaded double off reliever Gene Garber in the second to score Robinson and Phil Garner Robinson singled and went to second base on Rennie Stennett's infield out and Garner walked

Larry Christenson, 2 2, went the first seven innings, giving up the first two runs, six hits two walks, four strikeouts and a balk

Steve Yeager homered and doubled and Bill Russell hit a runscoring single to break a 1-1 tie Tuesday night in a 4-1 victory by the Los Angeles Dodgers over the San Diego Padres behind the combined three-hit pitching of Don Sutton and Charlie Hough

Sutton, 3-0, struck out seven but walked six, including four in the second inning to give the Padres their lone run The only hits he surrendered were singles by Bill Almon in the third, Gary Sutherland in the fifth and Dave Winfield in the ninth before yielding to Hough

With the score tied 1-1 in the fifth Yeager led off by hitting the first pitch from loser Bob Shirley over the leftfield wall for his second homer of the year

No matter how it's taught, rodeo instruction still is a school of hard knocks as this unidentified fledgling cowpoke is about to find out Rolli Wilson of Kalispell, Mont., recently concluded a three-day school on the finer points of rodeoing that included initial preparation and schooling on a mechanical rubber and steel buckin' bronc simulator. Final exams, however, were conducted on the "real thing."

Carroll HRs pep Huskers to UNO split

Omaha — Tim Carroll slammed his first two home runs of the season for Nebraska Tuesday, but the Huskers needed a five-run third inning in the nightcap to win, 8 5, and get a split in the twinbill at College World Series Park after the UNO Mavericks won the opener, 4-1

Carroll's third inning home run was the only scoring the Huskers could muster in the first game, as UNO s Mike Metz scattered seven hits to gain his fourth win of the season

The Mavericks scored twice in the second inning, the key blow being a double by Mike Wurth, and then added two more in the sixth on a run-scoring single by Jeff Hunter and a Bob Woodworth infield out

UNO jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second game, but Nebraska came up with five runs in third on only three hits as they were aided by two UNO errors

The Huskers added another pair in the fourth on a run-scoring double by Paul Haas, who later scored on a scarifice fly by Joe Scherger Carroll s second homer of the day, in the sixth, ended Nebraska scoring

UNO tried to rally in the bottom of the seventh as Woodworth blasted a two-run homer and two batters later, pinch-hitter Tom Neumann added another round-tripper But it wasn t enough, as UNO fell to 19 8 on the year.

Nebraska, now 21-11, returns home Wednesday for a doubleheader against Missouri Western beginning at 1 30 p m on the Husker diamond

Rockets square series, 107-103

Landover Md (UPI) — Forward Rudy Tomjanovich scored 28 points and ignited a fourth quarter rally Tuesday night as the Houston Rockets beat the Washington Bullets 107 103 to square their best-of-seven NBA playoff series at two games each

Game five will be played at Houston Friday night

With the score knotted at 92 late in the game, Tomjanovich scored consecutive baskets on a sweeping, in-close hook shot and a long jumper to put the Rockets up by four A basket by Moses Malone with 4 40 remaining put Houston up by six and the Bullets never got closer than two points thereafter

Phil Chenier paced Washington with 29 points while Elvin Hayes contributed his best game of the series with 23 Wes Unseld led the Bullets with 14 rebounds while Malone had 13 for the Rockets, champions of the NBA Central Division Calvin Murphy scored 22 points for Houston

The Rockets seemingly had the game won with a seven-point lead and little more than two mintues to play, but a foul shot by Tom Henderson, a three point play by Chenier and anotehr free throw by the Bullets' rookie sensation, Mitch Kupchak, drew Washington within two points.

After Malone and Hayes exchanged missed shots, Houston called time out with 35 seconds left Mike Newlin then beat the Bullets' pressure defense for a 15-foot jumper with 27 seconds left to seal the game Henderson and Newlin traded lay-ups to finish the scoring

Omaha nips Indianapolis

Omaha (AP) — Omaha rallied for three runs in the seventh inning Tuesday night to edge Indianapolis, 5-4 and split the four-game American Association baseball series

The Royals' big inning started when walks to Willie Wilson and pinch-hitter Gary Martz around a double by Rudy Kinard loaded the bases with no one out

Shortstop U L Washington then singled home Wilson, and third baseman Dave Cripe followed with a double down the left field line to score Kinard and Martz

White Sox' Zisk continues hit binge

United Press International

Richie Zisk continues to make the Chicago White Sox a formidable opponent in the American League West

Zisk continued his torrid batting pace Tuesday by driving in three runs, including the game-winner with a 14th inning single, in leading the White Sox to a 10-7 victory over the Detroit Tigers

Zisk, who hit his sixth homer in the second inning and doubled home a run to start a four-run eighth inning that enabled the White Sox to tie the score at 6-6, singled home Ralph Garr with the go-ahead run in the 14th as Chicago scored three times to win. Zisk is now hitting .344 with six homers and 17 runs batted in.

In the only other American League afternoon game, Minnesota defeated Seattle 5-3 Toronto at Cleveland was rained out

Dan Ford drew a basesloaded walk from reliever Stan Thomas to force home the tie-breaking run in a three-run eighth inning which enabled the Twins to defeat the Mariners Craig Robinson's seventh inning homer had given Seattle a 3-2 lead before the Twins rallied to win on three hits, an error and Ford's walk.

Doug Decinces climazed a four-run first inning with a two-run single and rookie Eddie Murray slammed his third home run Tuesday night to enable the Baltimore Orioles to snap New York's six-game winning streak with a 6-2 triumph over the Yankees

Ex-Yankee Rudy May, 2-2, scattered nine hits to outduel ex-Oriole Ken Holtzman, now 1-1

Rick Wise, who entered the game with a 54.00 earned run average, set Milwaukee down on five hits before yielding to Bill Campbell in the ninth Tuesday night and Carlton Fisk singled home one run and scored another in leading the Boston Red Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Brewers.

John Mayberry belted a two-run sixth inning home run off Gaylord Perry Tuesday night to give the Kansas City Royals a 6-3 victory over the Texas Rangers

Tom Poquette opened the sixth with a single, his third hit of the game, before Mayberry unloaded his seventh career homer off Perry and the first by anyone this year against the Texas righthander, who fell to 1-3 Mayberry has hit 15 homers in six seasons against the Rangers

Spiker test moved

The Nebraska School Activities Assn announced the awarding of the state volleyball championships to Kearney for the coming year, the first time in the five-year history of the tournament that it s been held outside of Scottsbluff

In making the volleyball assignment to Kearney, the board expressed gratitude to the community of Scottsbluff and school officials in that area for being the host for the five previous state tournaments.

Gate receipts increased from $4,138 24 in 1972 to $17,029 in 1976

In other business, the NSAA Board decided to change the format of the boys state tournament to match that of the girls, using only three sites on opening day opposed to four in the past.

Pershing Auditorium and the Sports Center will host six first round games instead of four as in the past.

It was also decided that there will be a full week between the boys and girls tournaments. with the girls running March 2-4 and the boys March 9-11. Member schools will be polled in the next school year to decide if they want a full week between the two tournaments.

Fremont — John McMullen, the dean of Nebraska high school wrestling coaches, has resigned his position

McMullen has been Fremont's head wrestling coach the past 21 years, finishing in the top 10 on 10 occasions.

McMullen, who will remain on the Fremont faculty as a psychology teacher, said he is returing to spend more time with his family.

Norfolk, Va (AP) — It's called "blood doping" — withdrawing and later reinfusing the blood of distance runners

It caused a stir at the 1976 Summer Olympics when charges flew that double gold-medalist Lasse Viren employed the controversial technique Viren denied the charges

And now, researchers are preparing for what could be the definitive study on blood doping at an institution which, oddly enough, has no track team.

"We hope to answer the one question we feel hasn't ever been resolved. Mainly, does blood doping really work?" said Dr Melvin H Williams, a researcher at Old Dominion University here

Because ODU has no track team, Williams has had to go off-campus to recruit volunteers for his experiment.

He has lined up 20 members of the Tidewater Striders, a local amateur track club, each of whom is willing to "donate" a pint of whole blood to the unusual experiment.

Ten will receive their own blood back three weeks later, while the other 10 will be injected with a saline solution.

All will wear blindfolds so that no one will know who gets the blood and who gets the salt water.

The 20 runners will be tested for performance capacity on a treadmill before and after reinfusion. Each will run to the point of exhaustion, said Williams.

Williams conducted a similar experiment in the spring of 1972. His conclusion then was that blood doping does not increase a distance runner's endurance capacity.

The only other major study on blood doping was conducted by a Swede, Bjorn Ekblom, in the early 1970s, Williams said Ekblom concluded that blood doping works

"Ekblom is a runner himself and he has used the technique He said it definitely had a beneficial effect on him," said Williams.

Williams hopes his experiment — which is scheduled to begin next month and be completed by July — will be a refinement of his and ekblom's earlier work

Viren, a Finn, won the 5,000-meter and 10,000-meter races at the 1972 Munich Olympics and again at Montreal in 1976 The feat was unprecedented In between the double triumphs were a series of mediocre performances

After charges were made, Viren declared vociferously that he had competed with his normal complement of blood, no more.

Blood-doping — which in theory raises the blood's oxygen-carrying capacity — raises unique legal and ethical questions, as Williams sees it

The International Olympic Committee prohibits a competing athlete from taking "a physicological substance in abnormal quantity" or "by an abnormal route of entry into the body "

Is 12 pints of one's own blood an "abnormal quantity" for a runner whose body normally holds 11 pints? Is a needle in a vein an "abnormal route of entry ' when the substance being infused is one s own blood"

Williams, a physiologist who is director of ODU's human performance laboratory, is unsure how to answer those questions

'It's an ethical gray area and I don't really have a personal opinion," said the former paratrooper who, at 39, runs 70 miles a week

But he said if it can be established that blood doping is ineffective, all ethical and legal questions will be moot.

Ekblom and other blood-doping proponents say it works like this the blood is withdrawn and stored Meanwhile the body regenerates new blood. The stored blood is reinfused, thus augmenting the body's normal complement of oxygen-carrying red blood cells.

Williams and others say other factors — such as the blood s increased viscosity (thickness) after reinfusion — negate the effect of the extra blood cells.

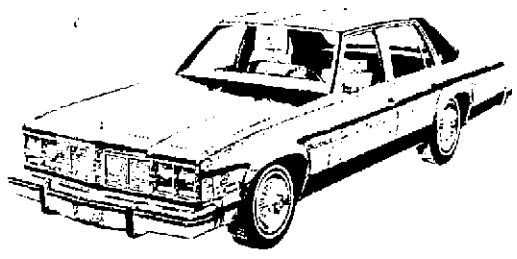
Chevy engine irks Oldsmobile owner

To ask a question call 477-2121 or write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, Neb. 68501.

Engine switch

In January, 1977 I bought a Delta 88 Oldsmobile. Now I learn it has a Chevy engine in it which apparently is a cheaper motor. Would you please give me the address of Ralph Nader's protection agency?

L. M., Cortland.



ACTION LINE: You can write to Nader in care of Public Interest Research Group, 2000 P Street, Washington, D.C. 20036. Although General Motors claims the engines are substantially the same, it announced Monday it will offer credits toward new cars or special long-term warranties in response to complaints like yours. Your options are (1) returning your Oldsmobile to the dealer for credit of its full purchase price, minus eight cents a mile, against purchase of another 1977 vehicle, or (2) getting a free, 36-month, 36,000 mile extended warranty on the engine, transmission and rear axle. The offer expires June 1.

Looking for driver

On Sept. 2, my car was legally parked at a south Lincoln residence and was hit by another vehicle. The damage amounted to $850. The driver was ticketed for not having a license and also was fined for an operating violation. I would like to collect damages but I am unable to locate the driver. What is my recourse?

—S.S., Lincoln.

ACTION LINE: You might check two places. If a policeman was called to the scene, a copy of his report should be available from police department records. If, as you report, the operator was fined, the clerk of the municipal court should also have a record. An attorney might best advise you how to locate the driver and recover costs.

Missing rings not rosy

I ordered four pairs of earrings from Jewelart, Inc. of California. I mailed them a check for $5.18 but only received one set of the earrings. They returned a $3.00 credit slip and asked me to reorder the missing items, and did so, but still no response.

B. Fugh, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: We have contacted Jewelart twice with problems and both times their response has been polite and prompt. They will check your order and send you the missing items or a refund.

Got our goat

ACTION LINE INQUIRY: One of our readers wants goat meat for some culinary delight she is preparing. We have found goats that produce cheese, and even some to look at, but none that would be suitable in a casserole. Readers, can you help?!

ACTION LINE UPDATE: Last week, we reported American Electric Corp. of Calif., could not find a reader's crockpot. An American Electric spokesman said a search for the missing item was unsuccessful, so they will send her a new crockpot free-of-charge. Our response to a letter from "the World's Greatest Catfisherman" seeking pure granulated dried blood brought letters from several contenders for his title. Sorry, but our highly-secret source has told us he can supply blood only to the "Greatest." However, a trip to the local feed supply store might put these fishermen on the right track.

'Cut the brass'

CASH KING

OVER 38,000 PRIZES TO BE WON

YOU COULD WIN UP TO $1,000

RULES FOR PLAYING CASH KING

GAME SERIES #CK35

1. Get a FREE CASH KING Collector Card at the checkout counter or store office. Get a FREE Game Ticket every day you visit a participating store. Limit one ticket per family per visit. Game materials may also be obtained by mailing stamped self addressed envelope to Cash King, P. O. Box 2098, Grand Island, Neb. 68801. No purchase necessary. Adults only eligible.

2. Each Game Ticket has four CASH KING markers. Each Marker corresponds to a square in the Games on your Collector Card. Some Game Tickets will contain a Saver Disc. Place the Saver Disc in the space provided on your Collector Card. If you get 10 Saver Discs, they may be exchanged for 10 FREE Game Tickets, giving you additional chances to win (see Odds Chart). Some Game Markers will say "You win $1.00!" This is an Instant Winner marker and you can collect your prize immediately from authorized store personnel.

3. Place markers in correct squares on your collector card. EXAMPLE: If one of your markers is a "Jack of Clubs" in the $1,000 Game, insert that marker in square numbered "Jack of Clubs" in the $1,000 Game on Collector Card. Winning combinations are described on opposite face of Collector Card. Markers may only be used to win in one row in the $1,000 and $2 Game.

4. All Markers in a winning row must be initialed by customer in the presence of authorized store personnel before submission will be accepted. $1,000 and $100 Winning Markers must be initialed in the presence of two (2) authorized store persons and approved by the general office. When a winning combination has been verified by authorized personnel you will be awarded your prize after furnishing your name and address.

5. All game materials will be rejected and judged void if not obtained from and verified by authorized personnel or if any part of any of the game markers is illegible, altered, mutilated, defaced, tampered with, forged, contains printing or other errors, or is irregular in any way. Game material void where taxed or prohibited by law.

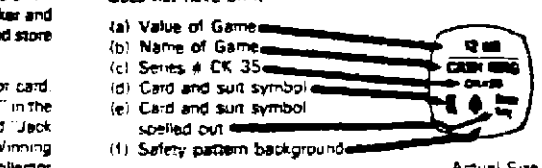
6. When and if all of the advertised winners are redeemed in any prize category, then game is terminated for that prize category without further notice.

7. Game will end upon distribution of all Game Tickets. All prizes must be claimed within five (5) days after announcement of termination or they are forfeited. The offer to exchange ten (10) Saver Discs for ten (10) FREE Game Tickets expires immediately upon advertised notice of termination of Game.

8. Only CASH KING game materials with series # CK 35 valid for this game. Employees of Nash Finch Co., Jack and Jill, Wallace Games, Inc. and their listed I. R. S. dependents are not eligible to play this Game. Applicable taxes responsibility of winners.

9. CASH KING Markers for any CASH KING Game void if it does not have on it:

(a) Value of Game
(b) Name of Game
(c) Series # CK 35
(d) Card and suit symbol
(e) Card and suit symbol spelled out
(f) Safety pattern background



Actual Size

CASH KING MARKER FOR CASH KING GAME VOID IF ABOVE SIX (6) ITEMS ARE NOT CLEARLY VISIBLE.

10. CASH KING Series #CK35 Marker must conform in size, shape and detail to the examples illustrated below and must contain the six (6) items of authentication described in Rule No. 9.

LUCKY SAVER DISCS

Increase your chances of winning Cash King Prizes. Collect ten (10) Saver Discs and exchange them for ten (10) FREE Game Tickets. Your ten (10) FREE Saver Discs may be exchanged for ten (10) FREE Game Tickets at our store office.

PLEASE READ!

These odds are in effect for one month after start. After one month updated odds will be posted in all participating stores and in Newspaper ads.

Sports Digest

Baseball

The New York Mets have acquired controversial infielder Lenny Randle from the Texas Rangers in exchange for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named later.

Randle, whose 30-day suspension will be complete Wednesday, also waived extradition to return to Florida to face charges in connection with the spring training beating of Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi.

Other baseball

Relief pitcher Mike Marshall, placed on waivers by the Atlanta Braves after a dispute with Manager Dave Bristol, has declared an end of his career with the club, but said he is keeping an "open mind" about a trade.

Cleveland Browns' owner Art Modell says he plans to discuss with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle the possibility of his taking an active role in operation of the Cleveland Indians baseball team.

Football

Vince Lombardi, son of the late football coach Vince Lombardi, has been named director of ticket sales and marketing in a reorganization of the Seattle Seahawks ticket office, the National Football League team has announced.

Former Colorado star Cullen Bryant, who played out his option last season with the Los Angeles Rams, has signed again with the club.

Other sports

A dramatic goal with 2 16 left to play, scored while a broken stick was sliding through the goal crease, gave Finland a 3-2 victory over the United States in the World Ice Hockey Championships, virtually ending the Americans' hopes of finishing in the top four of the eight team Group A tournament

Mark Roth, despite a 13th place finish in last weekend's Firestone Tournament of Champions, finished the Professional Bowlers Association's winter tour with a comfortable lead over Tommy Hudson in the PBA's money winning race, earning $52,005 in 16 tour events.

Seahawks get feelers

Seattle (AP) — If Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett is available, will the Seattle Seahawks select the Pittsburgh running back in the first round of the National Football League draft?

If Dorsett is available when Seattle picks, will the Seahawks use him as trade bait or will they make a trade with another club for their No. 2 picking position, passing up Dorsett altogether?

To all of this talk, Seahawks General Manager John Thompson says:

"Well, there's probably a little more interest in our first round choice than last year (when Seattle also picked second and selected Notre Dame All-America defensive lineman Steve Niehaus)."

"Maybe a half dozen or eight clubs asked that if we are thinking of trading that pick to give them a call," Thompson said

Y basketball field is set

The field is set for the inaugural season of the summer high school boys and girls basketball program conducted by downtown branch of the Lincoln YMCA

Called the "Coke League" at the Y, the program is designed to develop individual and team skills for next year's varsity level candidates

Although Nebraska School Activities Association rules do not allow school sponsorship during the off season, the teams in the boys league represent Beatrice, Douglas, Lincoln East, Northeast, Southeast, Lincoln High, Pius X, Norris, Milford, Waverly, Weeping Water and Wilber

Girls teams represented include Lincoln East, Northeast, Southeast, Pius X, Norris and Waverly

Demands for participation exceeded the final registration limit and Y officials indicated expansion for next season is a certainty.

Congress may air gasohol plan

Associated Press

Amendments to the Carter administration farm bill are being prepared that would establish five pilot plants backed by federally guaranteed loans for the production of alcohol from agricultural products to be used as a motor fuel mix, according to Don Shasteen, an aide to Sen. Carl Curtis.

Shasteen said the amendments have not been finalized and are subject to approval by Curtis and Sen. Edward Zorinsky, who plan to submit the amendments to the Senate Agriculture Committee.

In addition, there is another amendment that would establish an Agriculture Department research fund of $24,000,000 for research relating to the use of coal tar, a by-product of coalfired electric generators, for the manufacture of agricultural chemicals and alcohol blended motor fuel, according to Shasteen.

He said the coal tar research amendment was inspired by the Nebraska Legislature's then executive director, former Sen. Jules Burbach. A preliminary draft of that amendment would limit grants to $3 million to public state universities.

The amendments for the agricultural alcohol plant pilot projects were coordinated with State Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh, Loran Schmit of Bellwood and Myron Rumery of North Platte, Shasteen said.

Under terms of the preliminary amendment draft, the U.S. secretary of agriculture would be authorized to guarantee loans of $15 million for no more than 20 years.

The states in which the projects are started could charge no more than half the standard motor fuel tax rate on fuel containing at least 10% agricultural alcohol.

The products that may be used include grain, potatoes, sugar beets and other agricultural products containing sugar.

Those products would be provided to the plants by the U.S. Department of Agriculture at no less than the price support loan level for each commodity and under contracts not to exceed five years.

Those provisions would be carried out through the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Shasteen credited University of Nebraska-Lincoln Prof. William Scheller with some of the impetus for the gasohol amendment. Scheller is a long-time advocate of the use of agricultural alcohol as a motor fuel mix.

Scheller also is part of a a company that may be interested in securing such a loan, Shasteen said. The total costs for one would be about $25 million, according to Shasteen. He said the amendments are best suited to private companies wishing to try the idea.

Mrs. Nelson, 34, apparent victim of suicide

Omaha (AP) — Marcia Kay Nelson, 34, wife of former Nebraska Insurance Director E. Benjamin Nelson, has died of two gunshot wounds, apparently self-inflicted, Omaha police said.

Mrs. Nelson was found dead in her Omaha home Monday night.

Her widower resigned as state insurance director last December and currently is executive vice president and director of Central National Insurance Group of Omaha.

Arizonan dead in cycle crash

South Sioux City (UPI) — A one-vehicle motorcycle accident within the city limits Tuesday caused the death of an Arizona man.

Authorities said Charles A Franklin, 25, of Peoria, Ariz., died when his motorcycle struck a curb on the northbound lane of Dakota Avenue, flinging him and a passenger from the vehicle.

The passenger, Arturo R. Cabrera, 23, also of Peoria, Ariz., was treated for a broken leg in a South Sioux City hospital.

Earnings increase

New York (AP) — Weyerhauser Co reported firstquarter earnings of $69.6 million, or 53 cents a share, compared with $60.8 million, or 46 cents a share in last year's first quarter.

NWU hosts Midland

Nebraska Wesleyan will host Midland College Wednesday for a 2 p m doubleheader at Lincoln s Sherman Field and Doane Saturday in a 1 p m twinbill at the same site The Plainsmen swept Concordia 10 1 and 7 3 last week to up their NIAC record to 5 3 Then Saturday NWU took two from Bellevue 4 0 and 13-2 to run up a four-game winning streak and move the overall record above 500 at 10-9

We re just learning how to win, says NWU Coach Ron Bachman That means relaxing and playing the way we re capable of playing Not only are we hitting well, scoring 34 runs in our last four games but our defense, including pitching, has allowed just five runs in those same four games And we stole nine bases against Bellevue, which shows we re hustling

NWU has raised its team batting average some 20 points last week and is led by Bruce Reed Scott Votava John Svehla and Greg Peterson who are all hitting above 300

Fonner jockey no spendthrift

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Grand Island — Jockeys are known for their extravagancies — free spending, expensive cars and lots of extra cash

But Perry Compton is a little different He wanted to have something after his riding career, which like all riding careers, is destined to end So, last August he purchased a seven and one-half acre farm about five miles south of Columbus and converted it to a thoroughbred horse center

That s why I commited myself to an investment like a farm said the 24-year-old rider from Ft Pierre, S D It s too easy to let money go away I ve seen it happen with other riders I didn t want it to happen to me

Although the farm does not have a starting gate, Compton said 2-year olds are shown how to run and are properly schooled so they won t present serious problems in their career debuts

Over the past winter, about 30 horses were stabled at the Compton farm Veteran horsemen Albert Simon and Ken Fleischer had many of their animals there

Some of the horses stabled with the Comptons who enjoyed success at this spring's Fonner meet included Tim s Royal Stinger, Vagabond Queen Valiant Pappa and Mario Morn

'Right now, there's between 15 and 20 on the farm,' he said "We d like to have a lot more We have stalls for 54

' The farm really wasn't that profitable for the six months, but we were just getting started We'd like a lot more horses," he said

Compton plans to ride through the Columbus Races, but may not ride at the Atokad Park races near South Sioux City He ll return to Columbus and work with his brother Bob 21, Randy Brock and Mike Mitchell who supervises the shedrows and horses

' It gives me something to do in the winter I can keep in shape and stay sharp on the horses," he said ' I d like it to get bigger

The farm really resulted in a pledge he made to Mike Phelps another South Dakota rider, who died while riding at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha two years ago

"Mike and I always talked about getting a farm together after we quit riding " Compton recalled 'Now, he s not here and it s all the more important to keep it going When he was alive, he was my best friend "

While none of Compton's family were racetrackers, his two younger brothers have also tried riding

Jim, 22, has ridden at Park Jefferson, Ft Pierre and Aberdeen in South Dakota and recently rode at Centennial near Denver Bob has ridden in South Dakota

Neither is campaigning now due to weight problems, Compton added

While growing up in Ft Pierre, Compton was attracted to the races He was a hot walker and cleaned stalls as a youngster and finally won his first race at Park Jefferson on Rhythm Peel

He has been riding for the past seven years, including the past few seasons on the Nebraska circuit But last year was his first really successful campaign

NU golfers to Drake

It s off to Des Moines, Iowa, as the Nebraska golf team will compete in the three day 54 hole Drake Relays Invitational Thursday, Friday, and Saturday

Golf coach Larry Romjue said he has been disappointed with Husker practices the past week

We could win, but we need to improve over our last two performances Romjue said Nebraska finished second to Kansas at Lawrence, Kan , in a triangular last week and fifth out of 15 teams at the Wheatshocker Invitational April 7 8

Competing in the Drake Relays are senior Craig Moyer, junior Doug Smith, sophomores Steve Statton, Rick Reynolds, and Vic Carder

Husker softball team to meet

The Husker softball team will face Kearney State Friday at 7 30 p m at Omaha's Dill Field in NU's opener in the state women s softball tournament

If the Huskers win, they will face the winner of the UNO-Wayne game at 2 30 p m Saturday Should Nebraska lose, the team would face the loser of the UNO-Wayne contest at 10 a m Saturday

Gauger tells citizens carry on with merger

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

Citizens who want to draw up a mock charter for city-county government in Lancaster County should not let governmental foot-dragging deter them, County Commissioner Jan Gauger said Tuesday.

Although a proposal for a 21-member charter commission was defeated Monday night by the City Council, Mrs. Gauger urged "citizens who would willingly serve on this type of commission" to go ahead and organize themselves without government sanction.

"The majority of the City Council has spoken clearly to the electorate of this city that they do not consider the issue of merger of city and county government nor the involvement of citizens in that effort, to be an important issue in this community," she said in a prepared statement.

"The endless arguments about wording, about purpose, about process, have delayed, confused, and divided; but it is my belief that this has not destroyed the interest, nor the commitment, for the importance of this issue, in our community," she said.

Rather than coming out strongly in opposition to the proposal, opponents have picked it apart in a display of "shallow gamesmanship," she asserted.

"I urge the citizens of this community to stand ready to assume the leadership and to make their commitment known — that this issue will not die simply because of lack of support from a few elected officials," she said.

She called on the news media to ask each candidate in next Tuesday's City Council election to say how he would have voted on the resolution. "I believe the electorate of this city deserves to know, specifically, how each candidate stands on this question."

Calling the day of the council meeting alternatively "Black Monday" and "Gray Monday," Mrs. Gauger said the efforts of those who want to test the merger issue "have been sidetracked" by what she called "petty politics."

Councilman Steve Cook, who cast the deciding vote against the resolution, said Tuesday he doubts that public support for merger is very high. "If there was as much support (as Mrs. Gauger indicates) citizens would have done something about it before now," he said.

"It's been a government push all along," he added.

On the question of whether citizens should pursue the issue on their own, Cook said, "I think elected officials have a right to be involved, even if only as consultants or in an ex officio capacity."

The resolution before the council, which had already been approved by the County Board, called for 6 members of the commission to be appointed solely by the County Board and 15 by the mayor and County Board with the council's approval.

Cook said he hopes to present a counterproposal to the council "in a week or two," which would offer a different approach to studying the merger question.

Piecemeal efforts at cooperation between city and county have worked fairly well, Cook said, indicating he favors more casual local agreements that move toward greater cooperation, rather than consolidation "in one fell swoop."

The State Legislature has already killed a bill that would have allowed the merger question to be taken to a vote of the people.

Councilman Dick Baker, who also voted against the resolution Monday, said Tuesday he would like to see a committee set up to study "other areas of future cooperation" besides merger, while also trying to produce a charter.

Baker and Cook both said they would support the reinstatement of the City-County Implementation Commission (CCIC), which has been overseeing city-county cooperation for the past two years. The council voted to disband the CCIC when the charter commission was first proposed.

Mrs. Gauger's call for citizens to proceed on their own received support Tuesday from Councilman Bob Jeambey, who supported the charter commission proposal. "The further unification of city and county government will happen only when citizens demand that it happen," he said.

He added that he had warned the council a year ago against putting the issue "in the hands of government officials and staff, and the outcome was predictable."

"There is considerable demand to achieve efficiency in government and to eliminate unnecessary duplication in Lancaster County," he said, adding that he does not equate "the pursuit of a better form of government with consolidation."

He said he would like the charter group to function with "no strings attached," perhaps without any funding whatsoever from government. It would take "a modest budget" to support a charter committee, he said, which could come from voluntary contributions.

The process of writing a charter can be "expensive and short or inexpensive and long," Mrs. Gauger said. Those interested in the merger question "have already invested considerable time and money," she said. "The citizens are due their dividends."

Doyle will join Omaha highway firm.

Roads Dept. head takes private job

State Engineer Thomas Doyle confirmed Tuesday he has resigned his job to become executive vice president of Ready Mixed Concrete Co. and Lyman-Rickey Sand & Gravel Corp in Omaha.

Gov. J. James Exon announced Doyle's resignation Tuesday and said that District Highway Engineer David Coolidge, 66, of McCook will succeed Doyle. Doyle's resignation is effective June 3.

Doyle, 46, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor next year. Gov. Exon is not eligible by law to run for another term.

Exon said Doyle will go to work for the Omaha company at "a very substantial raise in salary." He now earns $29,700 a year.

Coolidge, a 40-year veteran of the roads department, has headed the McCook district office since 1948. His district covers 13 counties.

Exon said Doyle "has been an outstanding administrator, road builder and a key member of our administration since the beginning."

Doyle also served as state labor commissioner under former Republican Gov. Norbert Tiemann. Doyle went to work in that post on Mar. 1, 1967. Democratic Gov. Exon moved him to the state engineer's job on Jan. 7, 1971.

In his letter of resignation to Exon, Doyle wrote "I want you to know that I sincerely appreciate having had your personal confidence and support during my more than six years as a member of your outstanding state administration, and I thank you for having allowed me the personal honor of having served you in this capacity."

Exon said he was pleased to name Coolidge to the job, a man the governor described as "a highly competent engineer."

Coolidge is a native of Columbus and attended both Iowa State University in Ames and the University of Nebraska. Before joining the roads department in 1929 he taught school in Gillette, Wyo. Coolidge said he will move his family to Lincoln in May.

Cop guilty in drug ring

Omaha (AP) — Former Omaha police officer Leonard Smith and Three other men were found guilty Tuesday of involvement in a conspiracy to distribute heroin.

A jury of seven men and five women announced the verdicts to U.S. District Court Judge Albert Schatz.

Smith, 40, was accused in an indictment of providing heroin dealers with tips on police drug investigations in exchange for payment.

Also found guilty were Paustino Selvera, 47, Russell Spearman, 37, and Myron Jackson, 37.

Schatz accepted the verdicts and ordered presentence investigations, allowing all four defendants to go free on their original bonds.

The U.S. attorney's office said the maximum penalty for each is 15 years in prison, a $25,000 fine, or both.

In addition, each man could be required to be on a special three-year parole, following the regular parole, which, if violated, would mean a return to prison.

The key witness against the four was former heroin dealer Ike Conway, 48, who worked with investigators following his own arrest last fall. Conway implicated all four men during two days of testimony.

The case went to the jury last Friday following eight days of testimony and arguments. Jurors were recessed for the weekend and resumed deliberations Monday.

Scherer regains financial lead

City Council candidate Leo Scherer, who placed fourth in primary balloting, has regained the lead in campaign receipts and spending.

Reports filed Monday for the third primary reporting showed that candidate Joe R. Hampton would not have held the lead at all except for bookkeeping differences between the two candidates.

The reports on file show that Scherer holds a narrow lead in receipts with a total of $6,087, compared to Hampton's total of $6,047.

Scherer's lead in spending is considerably wider. His total of $5,373 compares to a total of $4,659 spent by T. R. Allan so far in the campaign.

The reason Hampton held an apparent financing lead for a short time is due to a quirk in state law which places the deadline for the third primary reporting period later than the deadline for the first reporting period for the general election.

Hampton kept a cumulative chronological total through all the reporting periods, but Scherer added the figures for the first general election reporting period last week, and did not include figures from the third primary election reporting period until the deadline Monday.

The result of this system of bookkeeping gave Hampton a short-lived lead in financing.

Other finance report figures show T. R. Allan in third place in receipts with a total of $4,959. Of that total, however, $4,000 is in the form of personal loans from Allan to his campaign committee.

John Robinson has reported $3,947 in contributions so far in the campaign. Sue Bailey has reported $3,321 and Dorothy Walker $3,201.

In spending Hampton holds third place with a total of $4,205. Ms Walker reported spending $2,907, Bailey $2,189 and Robinson $1,947.

Varied precipitation noted in crop areas

United Press International

The University of Nebraska Extension Division Tuesday said preseason precipitation across the state varied from less than two inches in the Panhandle up to near eight inches in north central Nebraska.

The division said this is the third year it has used a computer to assess and map seasonal weather-crop conditions that are important to agriculture. The preseason assessment period ran from Oct. 1, 1976, to March 31.

Preseason precipitation ranged from 1.76 inches at Bridgeport up to 7.94 inches at Springview and 7.62 inches in Chadron. Most of the eastern half of the state — excluding scattered areas along the Missouri River, Cedar, Dixon, Wayne and Stanton — received less than five inches of precipitation.

In addition, York, Hamilton, Fillmore, Clay and adjacent areas received more than five inches.

Precipitation in the major wheat producing counties in the Panhandle and southwest Nebraska ranged from normal to slightly below normal. Central and south central Nebraska reported normal to slightly above normal conditions.

However, Hersey and Madrid in Lincoln and Perkins counties benefited from well above normal precipitation, Extension climatologists said.

Areas in eastern Nebraska, especially the southeast, had way below normal precipitation. Syracuse, Tecumseh, Pawnee City, Falls City, Beatrice and Nebraska City each were 40% below normal.

North central and extreme northwest Nebraska received well above normal preseason precipitation. Although precipitation since Jan. 1 has been above normal, preseason moisture for Nebraska's grain crops has been below normal in many areas of the state.

Review of projects set by state health group

Scottsbluff (AP) — The Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency will review project applications costing $5.8 million at a meeting here Thursday.

Projects to be reviewed include:

Construction of a new 12-bed hospital at Callaway, $1,055,000; a rural health initiative project at Mullen, $80,085; remodeling and construction of an addition to the West Nebraska General Hospital at Scottsbluff, $3.7 million; acquisition of tomographic equipment by Mary Lanning Hospital, Hastings, $129,720; change of ownership of the Spalding Friendship Villa Nursing Home, $335,000, and Laurel Nursing Home construction, $550,000.

Recommendations of the agency board on the projects will be submitted to the Nebraska State Department of Health and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The board will hear a report by the Planning Development Committee on a health status analysis for the 71 counties in the Greater Nebraska system and establishment of subarea committees in central, west central and northern Nebraska.

Court clips man $50 for clipping from books

An Omaha man was fined $50 in County Court Tuesday for cutting out photos of women's faces from library books and pasting them on pictures of nude women.

Charles Knight, 28, pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor of mutilating public library books in Bennett Martin Library.

Knight reportedly had cut out the faces of Jackie, Ethel, Joan and Rose Kennedy and pasted them on photos of nude women in magazines he had brought to the library.

Damage to the library books was estimated at $36.

County agrees to join city on use of police helicopter

The County Board Tuesday unanimously approved a contract with the city for joint use of the Lincoln Police Department's helicopter.

Because of admendments added at Commissioner Bob Colin's request the contract will have to be returned to the City Council for reconsideration. The original version was approved by the council in March.

The agreement specifies the city will retain ownership of the craft, but the county will maintain it. For each hour the city uses the helicopter, the county will be paid $20 for maintenance costs.

The county helicopter will be put in storage.

Colin commented that the contract benefits the city more than the county, and contains many unforeseen costs to the county.

The Sherriff's department will have final authority to determine priorities of use. In joint operations, the city will pay half of the hourly rate.

Colin expressed concern that the contract requires that the county carry insurance on the helicopter, even though it is owned by the city. He did not, however, propose an amendment to change this.

The helicopter issue has been discussed "at least as long as I've been here," Chairman Bruce Hamilton said. "This will save the taxpayers some money for a change."

The board Tuesday went on record in opposition to LB538, a bill before the Nebraska Legislature, to allow the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute, a division of the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha, to bill counties for costs of treating county residents.

The bill would permit the Institute to charge a fee to all counties whether or not a county had actually referred a patient there for treatment.

The bill has been opposed by the Nebraska Association of County Officials. A public hearing will be Friday at 12:15 p.m. before the Legislature's Health and Welfare Committee.

In other business, the board:

—Approved a retail beer off-sale only and bottle club license for the Ship-A-Hoy restaurant, owned by Marvin N. Hoy, at U.S. 77 and Saltillo road.

—Denied a $50,000 claim by Michael D. O'Kelly for injuries suffered when his car went off an embankment and into a county-maintained bridge.

—Canceled a $5,000 remaining contract with the IBM company for an IBM360 computer system which had been tried in three county departments without success.

—Approved the transfer of $20,000 from the general fund to the county engineer's budget to cover salaries.

—Approved a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant application by Waverly School District No. 145 for $5,722 in federal funds for a counselor.

—Gave preliminary approval to a request by Arrow Gear Company to issue approximately $850,000 in industrial development bonds for a new Lincoln plant, to manufacture gears for sanitary sewage systems.

Omahan Andersen gets AP board seat

San Francisco (AP) — Four incumbents and two new directors were elected Monday to the board of directors of The Associated Press.

The election took place at the news cooperative's annual membership meeting.

Returned to the AP board were Katharine Graham, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of The Washington Post Co.; James F. Chambers Jr., chairman and chief executive of The Times Herald Printing Co., Dallas, Tex.; William H. Cowles 3rd, publisher and president of The Spokesman-Review and Spokane (Wash.) Daily Chronicle, and Robert M. White II, editor and publisher, Mexico, Mo., Ledger.

Newly elected to the board were Harold W. Andersen, president, Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald Co., and William J. Keating, president and chief executive officer, The Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc.

White was elected in the category of a director from a city of less than 50,000 population.

Following are the results in the general membership category. The first five were elected to the board:

Andersen, 13,322 votes. Mrs. Graham, 12,552 votes. Chambers, 12,214 votes. Cowles, 11,526 votes. Keating, 7,150 votes

Richard J.V. Johnson, president, Houston, Tex., Chronicle Publishing Co., 5,530 votes

Douglas L. Manship, editor and publisher, Baton Rouge, La., State-Times and Morning Advocate, 5,087 votes

Davis U. Merwin, publisher The Daily Pantagraph, Bloomington, Ill., 4,082 votes

Marshall Field, chairman, Field Enterprises Inc., and publisher, The Chicago Sun-Times and The Chicago Daily News, 2,400 votes

John R. (Reg) Murphy, publisher and editor, San Francisco Examiner, 2,069 votes

In the under-50,000 category, White received 11,831 votes and Jack Craemer, editor and co-publisher of the San Rafael, Calif., Independent-Journal, 2,823 votes.

Community college students face room, board, tuition hike

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Board, room and tuition rates on the four campuses of Southeast Community College will be increased this fall.

The increases, roughly 5% for board and room and 10% for tuition were approved by the college board during their monthly meeting in Lincoln Tuesday. They represent the first increases for several years, according to area College President Robert Eicher.

Eicher noted that the 10% tuition increase would be in line with recent action by other colleges in the state. The State College Board approved a similar increase last week for its four schools.

Tuition on the SCC Lincoln and Milford campuses will go from $100 per quarter to $110, and on the Beatrice and Fairbury campuses from $150 to $165.

In addition, student fees on the Lincoln campus will be increased by $2, from $2 to $4, with the extra money earmarked for a student center when the new Lincoln campus is built.

Southeast's Lincoln Student Council President Randy Barnes told the board that a student poll showed the students wanted the $2 increase, "even though most of them won't be around when such a student center is completed."

Eicher said the building of a similar student center on the Fairbury campus has "inspired students on all campuses" to make bigger plans.

Fees on the Milford campus, increased by $1 a year ago to finance the building of a tennis court, will be hiked another $1, to $5, to build another court. Milford students also supported the move, through a survey.

In other action, Lincoln campus President Dave Buettner was given approval to play an education project for the Nebraska Penal Complex and Reformatory. SCC currently teaches classes at both locations, "but there is little coordination of faculty and services offered," Buettner said.

The proposed system would establish a corrections education administrator to oversee programs in three areas — academic, vocational and counseling. There are nearly 400 inmates enrolled in SCC-sponsored education courses now, Buettner added.

Building a new cafeteria and remodeling the air conditioning education building on the Milford campus were also discussed. The remodeling would make the building more energy efficient and could open the door to teaching about solar energy, with the creation of a solar heating and cooling system for that building, Milford campus President Robert Klabenes told the board.

The possibility of moving the practical nursing program from the Fairbury to the Beatrice campus, to update facilities and allow more students to enroll, was discussed, with final action expected next month. Campus President Dan Gerber told the board the State Board of Nursing had suggested the updating, from one-room quarters available at Fairbury now. The move would be the most feasible approach, he said.

Action on the 1977-78 budget is also expected to come at the May or June meetings, Eicher said.

Atlanta publisher Tarver chosen AP chairman

San Francisco (AP) — Jack W. Tarver, publisher of the Atlanta Ga. Constitution and Journal, was elected chairman of The Associated Press by the news cooperative's board of directors on Tuesday.

Tarver, 59, succeeds Paul Miller who has been chairman of the AP since January 1963. Miller, 70, chairman of the board of Gannett Co., will remain on the AP board to fill out the three-year term to which he was elected in 1975.

David R. Bradley, president and chairman of the board of the St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press and Gazette, was named first vice chairman of the AP. Frank Batten, chairman of the board of Landmark Communications, Inc., was named second vice chairman.

The actions took place at a reorganization meeting of the AP board of directors following the election of new directors at the annual membership meeting on Monday.

Tarver's appointment had been approved by the board at a January meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., under procedures suggested by a succession committee.

One of 27 drug cases moved in Hastings to juvenile court

Hastings (AP) — Adams County Court Judge Glen Cramer Tuesday transferred the drug case of Patti Fernandes, 18, of Hastings to juvenile court.

The judge took the action at a preliminary hearing in one of 27 drug cases resulting from a 10-county drug sweep in late March.

The young woman was charged with one count of conspiracy to distribute, dispense or deliver marijuana.

Judge Cramer said he transferred the case to juvenile court because she was under 18 at the time of the alleged offense.

4 men arraigned for robbery of 55-year-old Lincoln man

Four men were arraigned Tuesday in County Court for the strong-armed robbery of a 55-year-old Lincoln man on Easter Sunday.

Wayne Menard, Bennie Rena and Bobby Abarr, all of Lincoln, and Daniel Williams of Omaha, are accused of taking $160 from Ralph E. Watkins of 2509 Vine. Watkins reported he was attacked at 2110 N. 27th.

Preliminary hearings for all four was set for May 9.
